Thalidomide victim tackles driving

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — His right foot resting comfortably on a special knob on the driver's wheel, a calm John Williams passed his Rhode Island road test Tuesday with a score of 89.

John was born 17 years ago without arms, a victim of the drug thalidomide. His slender feet — barefoot for the test despite sub-freezing temperatures — can do anything most hands can do.

"You gotta watch your speed on the straightaway. You're a little too hasty," warned driving inspector Salvatore Mellone after he handed John his scorecard. "You know where you took your written test? You can pick up your license in there."

A PORTSMOUTH native, John is a student at the Crotched Mountain Rehabilitation Center in Greenfield, N.H.

"At first parallel parking was pretty hard," he said. "At first we had a different kind of thing on the steering wheel and my foot would slip off."

He tried wearing socks with toes for cold-weather driving but they proved too slippery. So the only thing John wears on his feet is a macrame bracelet he made himself.

"I was born without arms," he said. "So I just had to adjust. That was all there was to it."

"WHEN I FIRST started driving, I drove by a policeman and he did a couple of double takes," John said.

Paul St. Pierre, John's instructor from Crotched Mountain, stamped his feet on the cold sidewalk and waited as the specially-fitted red Plymouth rounded the last corner. When John get his own car, he'll have to spend about $80 to put in a left turn signal operated by the left knee and a foot-powered horn.

"I've got a right hand turn signal in my car so all Johnny has to do is tell him (the inspector) when to signal left or right," St. Pierre said.

John made his own skateboard, won a soccer trophy at school, shoots a bow with both feet and climbs mountains. But he may be giving some of that up soon.

What's his latest ambition? "Get a job and buy a car," John said.

New police unit to help prevent holiday crime

Arlington Heights police have launched a special patrol team to concentrate on high-crime neighborhoods in the village, Police Chief Robert P. Derks announced Tuesday.

Derks said the four-man team, dubbed the Crime Suppression Patrol Unit, will patrol shopping centers, apartment complexes and the Arlington Park Race Track-Hilton Hotel area to stop holiday crime.

Aim of the unit will be to curb purse-snatchings, robberies and assaults to shoppers, burglaries to apartment dwellers and all forms of street crime to patrons of Arlington Park, Derks said.

THE UNIT WILL BE field-tested during the holidays, Derks said. "If we like what we see and if we think it's of some value we may continue this program," he said.

The unit will consist of two uniformed patrolmen in a marked squad car; and two plainclothes detectives in an unmarked car, Derks said.

The squad car will make one pass through a high-crime area, and the detectives' car will follow within a few minutes, Derks said.

Criminals who see the squad car passing by will feel false relief that the police patrol will not return for a long while, Derks said. However, he said, the unmarked car will cruise by and catch the criminal who chooses that moment to act.

Derks said the unmarked unit also might park, and observe activity around it, while the squad car cruises around the immediate area.

"Saturation patrol," Derks said, "has been around for a long time. It's nothing really new; other police departments have used it."

"As opposed to random patrols," conducted by most Arlington Heights police cars, the unit will saturate a high-crime area, Derks said.

Center probes paralysis-flu shot connection

ATLANTA (UPI) — Federal health officials said Tuesday they are investigating reports that at least 30 persons who received swine flu shots later developed a paralysis which sometimes persists for weeks.

The national Center for Disease Control said it picked up reports of the paralysis, known as the Guillain-Barre' syndrome, through its own extensive flu surveillance network which monitors the immunization program and reactions to the influenza vaccine. The center said state health departments were being asked to join in the center investigation.

The center said there was no evidence to link the reported cases to vaccination and that there did not appear to be an increased number of cases of Guillain-Barre' syndrome occurring in the country.

"Nevertheless, center has initited a full investigation to assure itself that no relationship exists between vaccination and the illness," a spokesman said.

THE CENTER SAID that as of Tuesday, 54 cases of Guillain-Barre's syndrome, known as "ascending paralysis," in 10 states have been reported.

"Thirty of these individuals had been vaccinated from one day to 30 days before onset of illness, 21 had not been vaccinatd and the vaccination status is unknown in three cases," it said.

The 10 states reporting cases of paralysis were Colorado, New Jersey, Alabama, Minnesota, Ohio, Maryland, Oklahoma, Michigan, Virginia and Connecticut.

In addition, three suspected cases were reported in South Dakota by Ken Senger, coordinator of the swine flu immunization program in that state. Only one of the three was listed as having received the influenza vaccine. Senger said only a handful of people were involved and that the inoculation program in South Dakota was not being suspended because of the reported cases of paralysis.

THE CENTER SAID the Guillian-Barre' syndrome is not a reportable disease and that its true prevalence in this country is not known. But it said that based on limited studies, "the rates reported do not appear to be significantly different from those expected," adding that "the military services have reported no increase in the increase of Gullian-Barre' syndrome among active duty personnel."

According to the center, the illness is an infrequent, poorly understood and usually non-fatal condition characterized by symmetric weakness in the limbs, loss of sensation, diminished reflexes and sometimes more severe paralysis. It said the disease usually begins as a rapidly developing weakness in the legs, with loss of sensation and diminished reflexes. The hands and arms become involved, and then the trunk, neck and face.

Saudi Arabia to oppose OPEC oil price increase

DOHA, Qatar (UPI) — Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani said Tuesday his country opposes any immediate increase in petroleum prices because world economic recovery has not been "as strong as we had hoped."

Yamani's surprising statement threw an immediate note of drama into the meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries where other delegates are seeking an increase of 10 to 25 per cent.

The meeting opens Wednesday amid security so strong that it has turned the Gulf Hotel, site of the conference, into a virtual armed camp in an effort to prevent a repetition of the guerrilla attack on OPEC's headquarters in Vienna a year ago.

SAUDI ARABIA, the world's third largest oil producer and the most powerful voice at the conference, had been expected to insist on a moderate 10 per cent increase at most.

But Yamani said, "I never insisted on a 10 per cent maximum and never said I had expected 10 per cent. Our position was for a reasonable increase if the others insisted, taking into consideration there was a strong economic recovery at that time.

"However, in the last month the recovery was not as strong as we had hoped. Therefore we have changed our position, to freeze the price for the next six months."

Yamani was asked if this was his final word. He replied: "It is our position today and we will do our best to convince the other members with our views — but we never in the past took a position we will not change, even if we think it is a very strong position."

OPEC DECISIONS must be unanimous. Yamani's statement appeared to foretell a hard-fought debate at the conference, where price increase demands range up to 25 per cent. But the prevailing impression appeared to be for an increase of 10 per cent or less, if Saudi Arabia agrees to go along with other countries.

Yamani's view conflicted with a statement by Qatar's oil minister Sheikh Abdel Aziz Khalifa Al Thani earlier Tuesday, who said the West has ignored "crystal clear" warnings to cut its inflation rates and that an increase in petroleum prices is essential.

Even a 10 per cent increase in the price of oil — the current rate is $11.51 a barrel — would add $12 billion to the world's annual fuel bills.

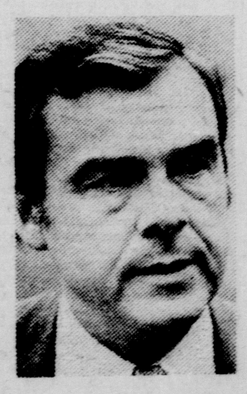

Fulle ordered to prison on extortion conviction

Floyd Fulle, former Cook County commissioner convicted of extorting money from two Northwest suburban apartment builders, has been ordred to surrender to federal authorities by Jan. 12.

U.S. District Judge Bernard Decker Tuesday ordered Fulle to surrender by Jan. 12 to begin serving a five-year prison term for extorting $69,000 from builder Thomas Origer and Sellergren Inc. in 1970 in exchange for zoning changes sought by the builders from the county board.

The charges involved the Old Madrid complex in Palatine and the Shorewood Village complex near Des Plaines.

Fulle, 666 Laurel Ave., Des Plaines, was convicted of the charges Oct. 31, 1975 and lost an appeal of the conviction two months ago.

Embezzlement trial Jan. 5 for Dodds

Jan. 5 has been set for the start of the trial of Arlington Heights banker Bruce C. Dodds, charged by the federal government with embezzlement and misapplication of funds from the First Arlington National Bank. The case was to be heard Tuesday, but was delayed because U.S. District Judge Alfred Y. Kirkland has other trial matters pending. Dodds' trial could be delayed again depending upon the judge's caseload at the time set for the matter. Dodds, 30, is charged with four counts of embezzlement and misapplication of $18,000 in bank funds from April 22, 1971 to July 12, 1972 while he was the bank's auditor. He is the son of Bank Pres. Douglas Dodds.

Teachers will vote on the contract Saturday and the board is expected to vote on the pact within a week.

Reconsider vandal law: Horcher

Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher has asked village officials to reconsider passage of a vandalism law that would make parents responsible for the vandalism committed by their children. Village officials earlier this year dropped plans for the ordinance modeled after one in Deerfield, when Village Atty. John Burke said the law may be unconstitutional. Horcher has told the village board that Northbrook has successfully prosecuted several cases in which parents were made responsible for their children's vandalism. The proposed ordinance would make vandalism punishable under municipal codes and treated similar to a traffic violation. Vandals are now prosecuted under criminal law carrying stiff fines and permanent criminal records. Trustees will consider the matter Dec. 29.

Taxi cost same for elderly

Ridership on the intracity bus system in Des Plaines has increased since the start of free bus rides for senior citizens, but the program has not reduced the cost of the city's subsidized taxi program for the elderly. In October, the city council passed an ordinance allowing senior citizens to ride free on local bus routes. City officials said they hoped the bus program would help keep down the cost of the taxi program for the elderly. Although 75 more senior citizens are riding the bus each week, the cost to the taxi program has remained the same — about $3,100 a month.

Tosto raps housing study

Elk Grove Village "would have to build a bigger village and then make everybody move out" if it is to comply with a regonal planning agency's housing guidelines, Trustee Michael Tosto says. A Northern Illinois Planning Commission study states Elk Grove Village should have either one low-to moderate-price dwelling for every three jobs, or a minority population of 2 per cent. It now has a 1.5 per cent minority population. Local officials argue that Elk Grove Village is unique because of its giant industrial park. "There are 30,000 people out there and according to NIPC, that means we ought to have 10,000 low-cost homes," Tosto says. But there are only 7,500 homes in the village so even if the whole village were low priced housing, we'd be 2,500 short. The figures are ridiculous."

GOP urges active role for chief

Ford discusses pay increas e

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford consulted congressional leaders Tuesday about a big pay raise for top-level federal employes. GOP representatives, meanwhile, urged him to be an active party chief after he leaves the White House.

Ford met early with the Republican leadership to discuss legislative matters, including a pay raise for federal personnel, and followed up with a similar session with Democratic chiefs.

They talked about the recommendations of the Federal Salary Commission headed by former Commerce Secretary Peter Peterson.

THE COMMISSION has asked for an average 40 per cent increase in congressional, judicial and top-ranking executive salaries combined with extensive disclosure requirements and strict prohibitions against outside income for federal employes.

The Republicans also used the White House visit to urge Ford to be an active leader of the party, not just a figurehead who leaves the work to the new party chairman.

Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., a longtime friend of Ford's and one of those in the running to succeed Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., as the Senate Republican leader, said the President "was encouraged not only to be a titular head of the Republican party but to be an active leader."

He also said Ford "had no favored candidate" for the new chairman to replace Mary Louise Smith, but was "trying to be a coordinator of the various positions."

SCOTT SAID Ford was considering reviving the Republican coordinating committee as a forum for the GOP viewpoint while the Democrats control both the White House and Congress.

After the meeting with Democrats, Jim Wright, D-Tex., the new House Democratic leader, said he expected a pay increase. He said, though, there might be constitutional problems with any proposal that would have an administration and enforcement group superior to all three branches of government.

"There are going to be some substantive improvements and enlargements of the conflict of interest regulations, applied evenly to the three branches of government," said Wright.

"Unfortunately, this gets to be a question of the separation of powers, a constitutional issue."

Cops who care play Santa's part in Willie's Christmas

DENVER (UPI) — Police officers David Abrams and Robert Bales first met 8-year-old Willie with a stolen 89-cent plastic race car in his hand.

"He told us Santa didn't always come to his house on Christmas," Abrams said.

The patrolmen lectured the boy for stealing the toy, then bought it for him. But the thought of a small boy having a Christmas without presents continued to nag them.

ABRAMS AND Bales quietly made a visit to his home. Christmas morning Willie will find a bicycle from Santa in his living room.

"To tell you the truth, I don't like cops," Willie's mother said. "But at least these two care. They're concerned about what happens."

But it wasn't easy to convince Willie's mother to accept the gift.

"WE HAD TO TALK to his mother for about 20 minutes, just to get her to accept the bike for the kid at Christmas," Abrams said. "Finally, she accepted our offer.

"We don't care who she says it's from. All we wanted to do was make life a little easier for both of them."

The first time the officers met Willie was after they responded to a shoplifting call. They took him to his home, but no one was there.

THE TWO PATROLMEN spotted Willie playing in the streets the next day and stopped to talk with him.

"We asked him what he wanted for Christmas, and he told us Santa didn't always come to his house on Christmas," Abrams said.

The boy's mother said she lost her job a month ago as a laundrymaid for a Denver motel and has been using food stamps to buy food. She said she also faced eviction from her apartment for failure to pay the rent.

"My troubles and other peoples' troubles are two different things," she said. "Nobody's gonna feel sorry for me 'cause we ain't gonna have no Christmas. Pity is the last thing I need."

Speaking about her son, Willie, she saiad: "He's all I've got. I'm all he's got. If we don't take care of each other, ain't nobody else gonna."

Blumenthal, Adams get top cabinet posts

ATLANTA (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter Tuesday selected the head of a major conglomerate as his treasury secretary and a congressman who was instrumental in forming the nation's railroad system as transportation secretary.

For the treasury post, he named Michael Blumenthal, 50, chairman of the Bendix Corp. who was a refugee from Nazism. Blumenthal has a Ph.D. in economics and served in the Kennedy administration as assistant secretary of the state for economic affairs.

For the secretary of transportation post, he named Rep. Brock Adams, 49, of Seattle, Wash., who won respect in Congress for his work on legislation that eventually led to the Conrail system. Adams also was chairman of the House Budget Committee.

Brock Adams

Michael Blumenthal

CARTER TOLD a mid-afternoon press conference both men have "superb backgrounds."

Last week, Carter named lawyer Cyrus Vance as secretary of state and banker Thomas Bertram Lance as director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Carter was expected to name additional cabinet members at another press conference Thursday. He said his entire cabinet would be selected by Christmas and would hold its first meeting as a group before New Year's Day.

The incoming President disclosed that Jane Cahill Pfeiffer, a former vice president of International Business Machines, had asked to be taken out of consideration for a post in his administration.

She was thought to have been in line to become secretary of commerce.

TURNING TO the problems he will face in office, Carter disclosed Vance has been practicing quiet diplomacy in an attempt to head off an increase in international oil prices. He said he felt some "good" may have been achieved.

On the domestic economy, Carter avoided a direct answer when asked if he felt the country was in the midst of another recession.

"No matter what the definition is, our economic problem is very severe," he said. He promised to disclose his economic program even before he takes office Jan. 20.

IN OTHER personnel developments in the forthcoming administration:

• Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., a black congressman who Carter has said helped him more than anyone to become president, was reported likely to accept appointment as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

• Charles Schultze, budget director in the Johnson administration and considered a "moderate" and "pragmatic" economist by colleagues at the Brookings Institution, was reported by the Washington Post to be in line as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

• Physicist Harold Brown, 49, president of the California Institute of Technology, was considered frontrunner for the post of secretary of defense. But Carter said he had made no decision on that post yet.

CARTER SAID hte economy needs stimulation but he said he preferred to put the most resources into creation of jobs and less on a reduction in taxes.

Carter's own economic advisers and a group of business ltaders who met with him last week urged about $20 billion to $23 billion in economic stimulation, with most going into tax cuts for individuals and businesses.

But Carter fears the effect a permanent tax cut would have on his pledge to balance the budget within four years. He reiterated that pledge Tuesday.

"I intend to kep my commitment," he said.

CARTER SAID Vance had met several times with Henry Kissinger, the man he will succeed. Directly and indirectly, Carter said, both men have been pressing the oil-exporting countries to "a general realiziation" that another price increase "might be counterproductive."

"I cannot anticipate what they will do, but I feel very good about it," he said of the Kissinger-Vance effort.

In addition to meeting with his new appointees, Carter conferred with a group of mayors and a group of county leaders in the governor's mansion he once occupied in Atlanta.

Tax cut might be need for economy: Carter

ATLANTA (UPI) — President-elect Jimmy Carter said today that a jobs program was his first priority to stimulate the nation's economy, but he said a "tax decrease" might also be needed.

Carter said the nation's economic problems "are very severe" and "much worse than we anticipated three months ago or six months ago."

He told a news conference that in the next few days his chief economic advisers, including his newlynamed treasury secretary-designate, W. Michael Bluemnthal, will get together to "determine what we have to do — the amount of economic stimulus needed.

"My own preference is for job opportunities — putting our people back to work," Carter said. "What we can't make up that way may have to be done by a tax decrease."

CARTER PROMISED he would unveil his program for economic stimulus before he takes the oath of office as president.

Asked what his thinking was on a pay raise for federal employes, Carter said he understood a blue ribbon commission was working on recommendations along that line and would make a report to President Ford.

After that, he said, Congress would have 30 days either to veto the recommendation or let it stand.

"Not knowing the amount I can't anticipate what my action will be," Carter said.

Carter said, "I intend to keep my commitment to a balanced budget at the end of four years," he called the current budget deficit "excessive" and said he and his economic advisers will carefully monitor spending so they can meet their goal for a balanced budget by 1980.

CARTER SAID he does not share the view that different economic problems in different regions amount to "an economic civil war between the North and South. He said he "couldn't divide the nation into areas of prosperity and areas of deprivation."

"I can say fairly accurately there is a common ground that exists in all parts of the country," he said, noting that unemployment is high almost everywhere. He said one problem he would try to alleviate is the distribution of economic benefits contained in special legislation "accurately to areas of the country that need it most."

Asked if any individuals or organizations held veto power in his deliberations over cabinet appointments, Carter said "the U.S. Senate would be the only one."

"No one else has any veto power or authority or influence over my decisions," he said.

CARTER SAID he realized he had a lot of help from various groups and organizations during the election campaign, but said he conducted a two-year campaign without "any commitment in private" to anyone. As a result, he said, he is "completely at liberty" to make decision on the basis of merit.

Carter reported that representatives of the U.S. government have made "some progress" in talks with members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which will meet Wednesday to discuss a probable increase in the price of oil.

He said the United States has brought these nations to "a general realization that (an increase) might be counter-productive," and noted the effect of any increase on developing nations would be "much more serious than it is is on us."

"I feel very good about their attitude," he said, referring to the OPEC nations.

Carter indicated that Cyrus Vance, his designated secretary of state, had been involved in these discussions with OPEC nations.

Coalition hears testimony

South gets more than its share of funds: Walker

CHICAGO (UPI) — Governors Daniel Walker of Illinois and William Millikin of Michigan testified at a hearing Tuesday that southern states get a disproportionately large share of federal funds.

The hearing was sponsored by the Northeast-Midwest Economic Advancement Coalition, a group seeking more federal funding returned to states which pay a large share of federal taxes.

"The South is still receiving a disproportionate amount of federal funds," Walker said.

"PRESENT FEDERAL domestic spending policies contribute to regional economic disparities" not only through defense expenditures, public works programs and other capital outlays, Walker continued, but through formulas depending on population, poverty, per capita income, subpar housing and welfare populations.

Federal officials should consider the higher cost of living and its effect on income and purchasing power in northern states, Walker said. They fail to take into account the heavier tax burdens in northern areas, he added.

Thus, he said, southern states are rewarded for lower tax programs at the expense of "states which are willing to tax themselves more heavily to provide better services."

MILLIKIN ALSO said the allocation of federal funds "encourages development of the Sunbelt over the Midwest.

"The federal government should divert some of its capital development funds away from the cities of he sunbelt, whose growth rates are explosive, to the cities of the Midwest, where growth in some cases has stopped," Millikin said.

He also called for greater federal attention to midwestern transportation and energy problems.

In opening the hearing as chairman, Rep. James L. Oberstar, D-Minn., said its purpose was to aid in formulating a legislative program for the coming Congress and the "long-term effort ahead."

MORE THAN 200 members of Congress from 16 states of the Northeast and Midwest formed the coalition.

Stretch, a doll which can be stretched four feet in any direction, and the earthquake game represent a new breed of toys the kids are clamoring for this Christmas.

Time was when a child asked for a doll, it meant a plastic infant that cried tears or said "Mamma." No more. Santa has gone space age and show biz and so have the kids.

Among the biggest toy sellers this season are the television character dolls — the Fonz, Evel Knievel, the Bionic Woman, Sonny and Cher. If it's been on the tube, it's on the toy shelf.

TOP GAMES are the electronic video variety and play sets based on movies such as "Jaws" and "Earthquake."

Although television has had a tremendous impact on the toy market this year, traditionalists will be glad to learn that trains are making a comeback.

"It's incredible what toys have come to," said Gary Hoiem, advertising and inventory control manger for Chicagoland Toys-R-Us stores. "A lot of them are prompted by television.

Nearly all department stores, toy and hobby shops and large toy chains are reporting Stretch Armstrong and Evel Knievel are the big sellers this season. Other character dolls aren't far behind.

"The kids want their dolls to be in the hero role," Hoeim said.

But you don't just stop with the doll. Most of them now come with a variety of accessories, including clothes, houses and cars.

TRADITIONAL DOLLS are still popular with the girls, especially the ones that crawl, cry or sleep when tipped one direction or another. Their names are Thumbelina, Hush Little Baby and Baby Thataway.

In the games department, big sellers include the line of Super Toe, Super Kick and Super Touch, the mechanical figures which kick field goals, fire hockey pucks or shoot basketballs across the living room.

Pinball games are making a strong showing this year, as are the video games. "But we expect that they'll be improved and around for many Christmases," Hoiem said.

There's a "Jaws" game where kids have to grab treasures out of a plastic shark's mouth before his jaws clamp down on their hands, and an "Othello" game that is a cross between checkers, chess and backgammon.

The Ronald McDonald and the Sesame Street playsets are popular and "good food for thought" for pre-school children this Christmas, he said.

And science fiction playsets, Space 1999 and Star Trek, are selling fast again this year.

MR. SPOCK, Capt. Kirk and Dr. McCoy figures wander through the U.S.S. Enterprise "beamed away" in the transporter.

Edward Dorr, merchandising manager for toys at J. C. Penney's, Woodfield Shopping Center, says this is the year of the trains.

"Trains are making an unbelievable comeback this season. We are selling about twice as many train sets as we have in past years. Parents are coming in for trains of all sizes and types. We've had to order extras already," he said.

With a growing market each Christmas, store managers are forever devoting more aisle space to the toys, Dorr said.

"We have about 30 per cent more space for toys this year. Kids drag their parents through the aisle showing them what they want for Christmas. I think parents are buying as many if not more toys for their children this year," he said.

GERI KRANZ, toy manager for K-Mart, Arlington Heights, says she is constantly assisting parents who come in with a list of toys their children have made out for them.

"They want to know where in the store they can find the U-Drive-It toy, the Fonzie doll and the Choo-Choo trains. The only time we run into an irate customer is when we run out of the more popular toys close to Christmas, but we stock the shelves constantly, every hour," she said.

The toy section in any department store at Christmastime is a madhouse, but a store devoted soley to toys is worse.

"I love working in toys. It's exciting. They are always coming out with something different. And at Christmas, this job is never what you'd call routine," Ms. Kranz said.

Explosion rips through airport in Baghdad

TOKYO (UPI) — An explosion believed to have been triggered by a time bomb ripped through Baghdad, Iraq International Airport Tuesday night, killing or injuring at least 40 persons, according to reports reaching Tokyo.

The reports received by Japan Air Lines from its Tehran office said the blast occurred in the airport terminal. JAL said a member of its staff witnessed the explosion and contacted the airline's Tehran office.

It was not known who set the explosive device.

At least three Japanese were said to be among the injured, according to reports coming to the Foreign Ministry.

One of the injured Japanese, Nobuo Yamamura, 51, an employe of Nippon Electric Co., reported to his head office in Tokyo, "there were about 100 people in the airport lobby at the time of the explosion. The blast occurred in a corner of the terminal. The windows of the building broke into pieces and some people were thrown to the ground by the blast.

"There was panic. Some people had blood and were fleeing in the midst of shouts and cries."

A "REAL" SANTA CLAUS looks over the 8-foot high ice sculpture of Santa's reindeer on display in the reflecting pool of the John Hancock Center in Chicago. Sculpted from 8,000 pounds of ice by Yasuo Mizuuchi, the icy art work is estimated to have a life of as long as three weeks . . . provided our warm weather doesn't last too long. Mizuuchi learned the art of ice-carving in his native city of Osaka, Japan.

MSD salaries cost $3.1 million in taxes

The Chicago Metropolitan Sanitary District could decrease property taxes by $3.1 million if it did not pay its employes higher wages than industry or other area government agencies, the Civic Federation Tuesday said. Richard F. Elberfeld, the federation's analyst, testified at a public hearing on the district's proposed $862.1 million 1977 budget. The district has proposed a tax increase of more than 7 per cent to support the proposed budget.

The district pays its employes from 18 to 85 per cent higher than comparable employes in industry or other Chicago area government agencies, Elberfeld said. The district also pays its top lawyer at an annual rate of $10,000 per year more than the city of Chicago pays its corporation counsel, Elberfeld said, and it pays its purchasing agent at an annual rate of $4,000 per year more than Chicago's is paid.

More measles cases reported

Cook County health officials Tuesday reported another 25 confirmed cases of 10-day red measles, most of them in Chicago's southern suburbs. Dr. Colette Rasmussen, the health department's chief of preventative medicine, said officials are trying to determine if the disease is about to spread into the northern half of the county.

Dr. Rasmussen said she thinks more than 2,000 county residents have contracted the disease, based on the assumption that one in every 10 cases is reported. The disease can cause a variety of maladies, even mental retardation and death, health officials say. Dr. Rasmussen said two innoculation clinics have been scheduled in the northern suburbs in an attempt to prevent further spread of the disease. Anyone who received the vaccine before 1969, or before his first birthday, should be revaccinated, she said.

Court affirms Coles conviction

The U.S. Court of Appeals Tuesday affirmed the conviction of Ronald R. Coles, former president of the Lake County board of commissioners, on charges of extorting $800 from two tavern owners. In a unanimous three-page decision, the appeals court rejected Coles' contention the government had not proved he extorted the money.

The appeals court said Coles' argument that he should have been acquitted because the government only proved he received money while he was a public official was not "persuasive." Coles, 42, Lake Villa, was convicted March 26 after a bench trial before U.S. District Court Judge Prentice Marshall.

Illinois briefs

Thompson, Dixon move 'car swap'

Gov. Daniel Walker said Tuesday Governor-elect James Thompson and Treasurer Alan Dixon acted "as if they were swapping a used car" when they agreed on who should fill the final two years of Dixon's term. Dixon will be sworn in Jan. 10 as secretary of state. He originally offered to resign early so Walker could appoint his successor. He suggested that Walker appoint one of his aides, Democrat Joseph P. McMahon, to the post but said he could have agreed on any of a number of other acceptable people.

Monday, however, Dixon said Walker had refused to make any suggestion for a successor so he came to an agreement with Thompson that Thompson appoint long-term Deputy Treasurer Donald Smith to the position after the inauguration.

Washington seeks top Senate job

State Rep. Harold Washington, a black Chicago Democrat who will become a senator in January, said Tuesday he is a candidate for Senate president and wants more blacks in the legislative leadership. Washington is a six-term representative who won election Nov. 2 to the Senate. "As a matter of general concern, we want to organize the blacks in the House and Senate into a caucus," Washington said. He said "adequate" leadership roles for black legislators in both houses are necessary to "confront the serious problems in the inner city. We need the leadership roles in order to accomplish that," he said.

Bring death bill to vote: Egan

The sponsor of a bill to restore the death penalty in Illinois said Tuesday he wants the Senate to extract his bill from a committee where it has been bottled up since its overwhelming House passage earlier this month. Sen. Robert Egan, D-Chicago, received the Senate's approval to discuss Wednesday his motion to discharge the bill from the Senate Rules Committee. The measure easily moved through the House, passing by a 122-45 vote.

Egan needs 30 votes to bring the measure from committee to the floor for a full Senate vote. The Rules Committee, comprised of leaders from both parties who decides what bills will be considered in the upper chamber, said they were holding the bill because it is not a spending or emergency bill. Senate Pres. Cecil Partee also said the panel decided the bill will need more study since it was amended shortly before House passage. If passed and signed by the governor, the measure would be applicable only to the future, to convicted killers over 18 years old and to certain classes of crime.

State Senate vote predicted today

ERA backers seek Carter clout

by STEVE BROWN

Illinois proponents of the Equal Rights Amendment will try to arrange a series of phone calls from President-elect Jimmy Carter and a lobbying effort by his daughter-in-law to gain enough votes to pass the amendment this week.

The Herald has learned that a vote in the state Senate could take place today in a final effort to get the ERA passed before the Illinois General Assembly adjourns for the year this week.

The vote will come as Judy Carter, wife of Carter's son Jack, makes a 17-hour visit to Springfield in an effort to get the needed votes for the ERA passage in the Illinois Senate.

IF THE MEASURE is not acted on this week, the amendment will have to be approved by the House and the Senate when the legislature's new session convenes in January. The House already has passed the measure this session.

Besides Mrs. Carter's visit, The Herald also learned that Carter has been contacting a "select number of key legislators" by phone in an effort to increase support for the amendment.

Carter's phone calls are the results of a campaign promise made to Illinois ERA supporters.

"We still think we need three or four votes," said Doris Connant, president of the ERA-Illinois. She was uncertain whether the group could convince Senate Pres. Cecil Partee to call the amendment for a vote.

PARTEE HAS been reluctant to call the bill for a vote because he does not believe there are enough supporters to pass the measure in the Senate. The amendment needs the support of 36 of the 59 state senators to pass.

Several sources close to Partee told The Herald that he will call the amendment for a vote today, but they said Partee does not believe the necessary support is available.

Mrs. Carter was expected to begin contacting Democratic members of the state senate Tuesday when she arrived in the state capital from Washington. She also is to meet with several senators at breakfast and have a press conference today.

Mrs. Carter campaigned in Illinois during the past year in support of her father-in-law.

MRS. CONNANT refused to name who the president-elect has contacted in the state, but she said Carter has told legislators that he would like to see the ERA pass here before the year's end.

Partee's associates said the senate president will call the amendment for a vote to stem critics who say his refusal to have a vote on the ERA represents a personal opposition to the amendment.

Partee has been an outspoken ERA backer, but he has resisted calling a vote on the amendment because he believes its defeat in the Senate would damage its chances for passage in the next session.

RTA ponders reduced access plan

by LYNN ASINOF

The Regional Transportation Authority staff has called for a policy that would make it more difficult for the public to gain access to RTA documents.

Under the proposed procedure, it could take up to 72 hours to obtain public documents from the RTA. A written request form would have to be filled out before documents on file would be released.

In the past the RTA has made its records available immediately upon request.

LOUIS DOMBROWSKI, RTA public affairs director, said the policy is not designed to withhold information from the public. "On the contrary it is a procedure to respond quickly," he said, noting that the large volume of documents makes it difficult to provide immediate access.

One RTA director, who asked not to be named, said the new procedure is "like dropping blood in front of a shark." He said a restricted public access policy will whet reporters' appetites and make them search for shady dealings within the agency.

Another director, Richard Newland of Waukegan, said the policy is senseless. He said he would oppose it and blamed the proposal on RTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky.

Chicago board member Nicholas Bosen said he has not seen the proposal.

"My general reaction to any such proposal is that public information means exactly what it says. Barring any intrusions into the orderly workings of the agency, I think information should be readily available," he said.

DOMBROSWKI SAID the new policy will not apply to matters being discussed by board members. "I have been given specific instructions by the board that all documents that the board receives will be made available to the public upon request," he said.

Noting a recent fight with the press over access to a pay plan proposal, Dombrowski said such incidents will be avoided in the future by providing reporters with all the information discussed at board meetings.

"There won't be a repeat of the pay plan," he said.

The policy will be on the agenda for the RTA's January board meeting.

Jaycees dial, Santa talks, kids believe

by NANCY GOTLER

"This is Elf Bob, the North Pole operator, calling. Is Sherry home? Santa Claus wants to talk to her."

"Hurry, Sherry, hurry," 5-year-old Christy begged her older sister. "Santa's on the phone. He wants to know what we want for Christmas."

Thirteen hundred times this week that conversation will be repeated, with variations, as 45 Arlington Heights Jaycees call local children as Santa Claus.

THE CHILDREN'S ages vary from 3 to 9 years, some are shy and others boldly ask to talk to the elves. But they all have one thing in common — they believe.

"Wow! How did you know?" asked 5-year-old John when told Santa knew he wanted a pair of binoculars for Christmas.

"Santa knows everything," was the reply.

"I know," said John, the earlier trace of doubt in his voice now totally erased.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD April forgot what she wanted for Christmas but remembered to ask if Rudolph was near his sleigh and if he and the other reindeer had on bells.

Parents of kindergarten, first and second grade children in Arlington Heights Dist. 25, private schools and Kirk School in Palatine were asked to mail the Jaycees a form if they wanted their children to receive a Santa call. They included enough information — the child's age, names of brothers and sisters and a gift list — to help Santa convince the youngsters he is for real.

Many parents listened to the conversation on an extension phone and helped children who couldn't remember what toys to ask for.

"I THINK THE parents get a bigger kick out of it than the kids do," said Jaycee president Anthony Polenzani.

George, 6, wanted to know if Santa received his letter. Kimberly, 5, asked to talk to the elves and Rudolph. And Mike, 5, promised to leave Santa some milk and cookies Christmas eve.

All the children wished Santa a Merry Christmas. And all went to sleep dreaming of the workshop on the North Pole and the toys carefully put aside just for them.

Two charged

Police thwart burglary attempt

Two men were arrested Tuesday by Arlington Heights police who thwarted an attempted burglary after they staked-out the Pet International warehouse in the village.

Daniel Hochstatter, 18, of 1029 S. Mitchell Ave., Arlington Heights, and 19-year-old Keith Knickrehm, 5450 Astor Ln., Rolling Meadows, were charged with burglary and will appear today in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court for a bond hearing.

Police Sgt. Karl Reinke said Pet International General Mgr. Jim Chadwell requested a stake-out at the warehouse, 2605 Clearbrook Dr., after he discovered an unlocked door blocked by stacked boxes Tuesday morning.

Police began the stake-out at 8 p.m. and an hour later two persons were seen entering the warehouse.

ONE PERSON was seen going through the unlocked door before opening a garage door to allow the second suspect to drive a car into the loading dock area.

"Apparently, they got scared, because they both left in a hurry," Sgt. Reinke said.

The pair was arrested by patrolmen in a marked squad car one block north of the Pet warehouse.

Hochstetter is a warehouse employe, Sgt. Reinke said. He and Knickrehm were identified by police as the two suspects in the building.

Chadwell said Tuesday night that his warehouse, which distributes pet supplies to area stores, has had items missing in recent weeks and personnel have discovered a number of unlocked doors.

Both suspects admitted that they entered the warehouse Tuesday night to take fish aquariums, Sgt. Reinke said.

Further charges may be levied against the two, he said.

Man gets new date in murder attempt trial

Pretrial hearings for a 40-year-old Arlington Heights man, charged with the attempted murder of his 16-year-old son, Tuesday received a new court date and a new courtroom.

A spokesman for the Cook County State's Attorney's office said hearings for James Loughnane, 522 S. Cleveland Ave., Arlington Heights, were transferred from the Cook County Criminal Courts Building, 26th Street and California Avenue, Chicago, to the Chicago Civic Center, 121 N. LaSalle St.

Loughnane, who is charged with attempted murder and free on $100,000 bail, will appear Friday morning in Room 1404. A judge has yet to be assigned to the case, the spokesman said.

Loughnane, a former Chicago patrolman, allegedly took out insurance policies worth $120,000 on his son, Michael, early in 1975. Loughnane is accused of trying to drown his son while on a boating outing on Lake Michigan June 29, 1975.

Last Dist. 59 hearing tonight

About 30 citizens are expected tonight to discuss the unit school district proposed for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area.

The last of six public hearings on the financial and educational aspects of the proposal, tonight's hearing is scheduled from 7 to 10 p.m. at Elk Grove High School, 500 Elk Grove Blvd, Elk Grove Village.

Cook County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick said he will make a recommendation concerning the unit district in early February, two weeks after attorneys for both sides submit their final arguments to him.

Based on Martwick's recommendation, State Schools Supt. Joseph Cronin will decide on a referendum on the issue. If there is an election, only Dist. 59 residents will be eligible to vote.

THE PROPOSAL under consideration would combine Dist. 59 schools and Elk Grove and Forest View high schools under one school board and administration. Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in the High School Dist. 214 area.

The unit district has met strong opposition from Dist. 214 officials who say it would take about 40 per cent of the high school district's tax base, but only about 27 per cent of the students.

Dist. 59 officials favor the unit district, saying tax revenue from the local residents would remain in the area rather than being used to support the larger area of Dist. 214.

Artist-inventor tells world about coal-burning car

SAN LEANDRO, Calif. (UPI) — Up until now, Marshall Owen, a 48-year-old artist and inventor, has kept his coal burning steam car a secret. He invented it in 1952.

Now that the engine can get 10 miles per pound of coal, he thinks it is time to let the automotive world know about it.

"We have kept a very low profile up to this point," Owen said. "Now things are beginning to look good."

HE SAID THE Owen Vapor Engine burns specially treated coal, heating a small amount of liquid which vaporizes and supplies the power, much like a steam engine. The power is provided directly, requiring no transmission.

"The emissions are much lower by a long shot than from gasoline engines," he said. "The coal is treated by a special process and is extremely clean. There is hardly any measure of nitrous oxides, and carbon monoxide is way below gasoline engines."

Owen said he has not tested the engine in a standard automobile yet but will have one on the street within a year.

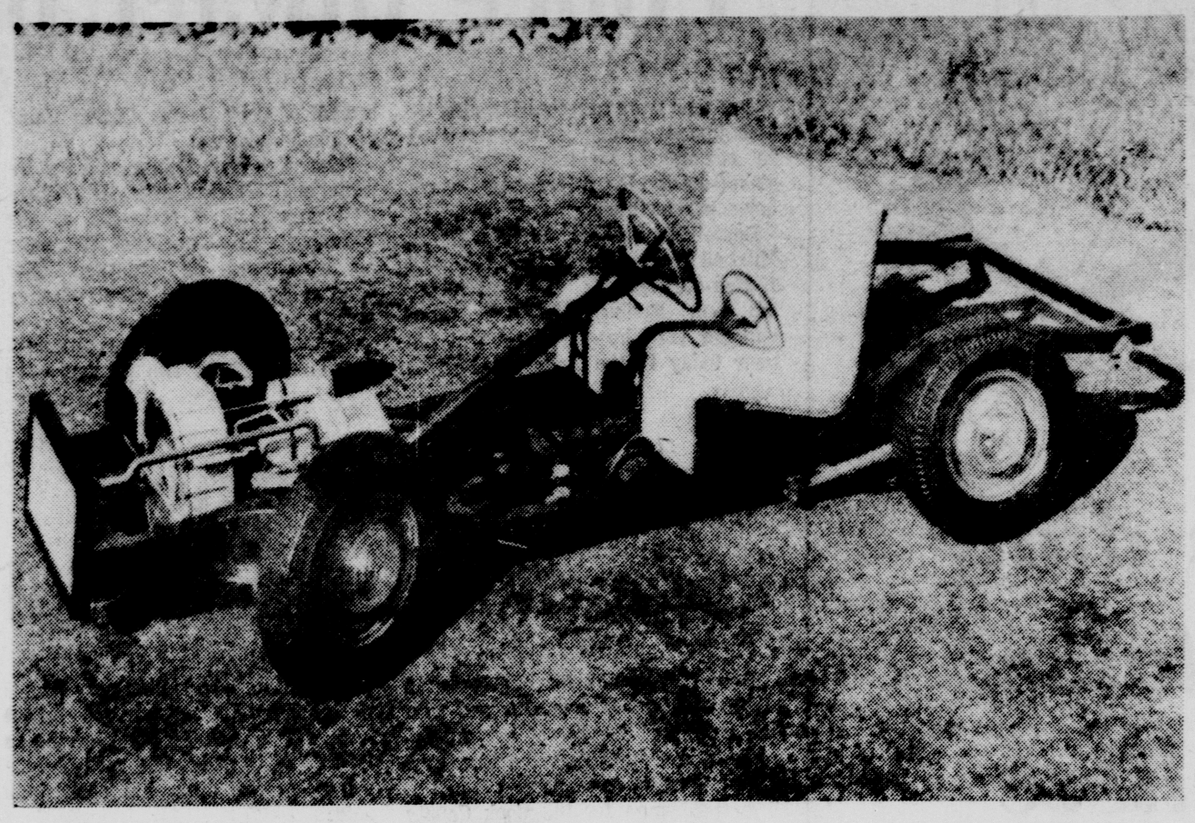

THE WAY HE sees it, you would drive your coal-burning car into a service station and ask the attendant for a couple of packages of coal. Under the hood, on top of the engine, are four plastic boxes each containing 25 pounds of fine granulated coal.

Owen says his car will go at least as fast as a high-performing gasoline engine.

With the price of coal at a nickel a pound, and getting 10 miles to pound, Owen figures many people will want to convert their present gas-burning cars with his engine. He hopes to have them available in about 36 months. Meanwhile he is seeking to license out his engine to new-car manufacturers.

Owen earned a living as an artist, selling paintings at up to $8,000 each, before starting Owen Power Industries, Inc.

His most successful previous invention was a toilet-exhaust device.

ARTIST AND INVENTOR Marshall Owen invented this coal-burning steam car in 1952, and now that the engine can get 10 miles per pound of coal, he thinks it is time to let the automotive world know about it. He says the OVE (Owen Vapor Engine) burns specially-treated coal, heating a small amount of liquid which vaporizes and supplies the power, much like a steam engine. The power is provided directly, requiring no transmission.

Italian police official injured in ambush

ROME (UPI) — Gunmen, led by one of Italy's most wanted fugitives, ambushed a top antiterrorist police official outside his home Tuesday. A shootout, which missed by minutes catching hundreds of schoolchildren in crossfire, left the guerrilla leader and one policeman dead.

Antiterrorist squad chief Alfonso Noce, the target of th ambush, and another policeman were wounded.

Hundreds of children had entered a nearby elementary school minutes earlier. Police said only the fact Noce left home slightly later than uslal kept the chil[illegible]en from being caught in the crossfire.

POLICE FINGERPRINT experts identified the dead gunman, who wore a wig and a fake mustache, as Martino Zicchitella, a leader of the left-wing "Proletarian Armed Nuclei" (NAP) who escaped from a south Italian prison in August. Zicchitella, 40, had been one of the country's most wanted men.

Police said the gunmen, whose numbers were not immediately established, apparently spent the night in a van parked near Noce's home in a residential district, peering out through holes bored in the vehicle's metal sides.

When Noce emerged from his home and walked to a police car that had come to take him to work, the gunmen jumped from the van and opened fire.

THE DRIVER of the police car was killed at the wheel. Three bullets wounded Noce in the shoulder and back. Another policeman, wounded in an armpit, fired back, fatally injuring Zicchitella who died shortly afterwards in his arms.

The remaining members of the commando fled by car.

Noce's wife rushed to the window when she heard the shots. Her husband, a hand on his injured back, shouted to her: "It's nothing, it's nothing."

Police set up roadblocks but failed to locate the escaped gunmen.

The ambush was the latest in a series of attacks by urban guerrillas of both the left and right against policemen or magistrates investigating their activities.

Editor, Nieman Fellow arrested in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police Tuesday arrested a black newspaper editor and Harvard University Nieman Fellow who had criticized Premier John Vorster in a middle-of-the-night raid on his home and held him eight hours for an "interview."

Percy Qoboza, editor of The World, South Africa's largest black newspaper, was picked up at 3:30 a.m. (7:30 p.m. EST, Monday) by eight policemen who banged on the windows of his home in the black ghetto of Soweto to wake him. They searched his house and took him away.

He was released at 11:45 a.m. (3:45 a.m. EST) after what Police Brig. C. F. Zietman said was "a lengthy interview."

IN AN EDITORIAL Monday, Qoboza criticized Vorster for "sleeping through one of the country's most dangerous times."

Qoboza, 38, who returned to South Africa in May this year after a 10-month Nieman Fellowship at Harvard, also was one of the black leaders with whom Sec. of State Henry Kissinger conferred during Kissinger's African shuttle last October.

Qoboza has taken an outspoken stand against the South African government's racial policy and stepped up his attacks after the June riots which broke out in Soweto and spread throughout the country and left nearly 400 persons dead.

In the editorial Monday, Qoboza said:

"If indeed the Prime Minister, Mr. John Vorster, still believes that there is no crisis in this country, but a mere problem, then we can (only) suggest he is sleeping through one of the country's most dangerous times."

He said the "hour of truth" has arrived for South Africa.

HIS WIFE TOLD newsmen that six white and two black policemen woke the couple up at their Soweto home "with loud knocking on the windows. We opened up."

"They rushed in," she said, and proceeded to inspect his books. "Percy told them he receives most of his books by mail and some he used when he did a course in the United States."

In London, the International Press Institute issued a statement praising Qoboza as "an editor whose courage and dedication to the truth has been an inspiration to all journalists."

"IPI is deeply concerned at the continuing and blatant attempts to muzzle free reporting and comment in South Africa," it said.

High mercury thaws winter's chill

The Chicago area's mid-December thaw is expected to continue today and the extended outlook calls for above normal temperatures through the weekend, the National Weather Service reports.

Temperatures reached a high of 43 degrees Tuesday afternoon, marking the first time in four days that the mercury had climbed above freezing.

Normal high for this time of year is 34 degrees and the normal low is 22. A National Weather Service official said there is "a better than average" chance that temperatures will stay above normal for the next four days.

PLO leaders meet, pledge better relations with Syria

DAMASCUS, Syria (UPI) — Palestinian leaders ended a summit meeting Tuesday with a pledge of better relations with Syria amid indications the guerrillas have agreed to accept a Palestinian state on the west bank of the Jordan river and the Gaza strip.

Falastin Al Thawra, the official publication of th Palestine Liberation Organization, said, "The world supports the establishment of an independent Palestinian state under PLO leadership" — the closest the PLO has come to publicly discarding its demand for a joint Jewish-Arab state including all of Israel.

In an editorial, the Beirut-based magazine called the establishment of an independent state "one of the national objectives of the Palestinian revolution." It did not specify what territory the Palestinian state should include.

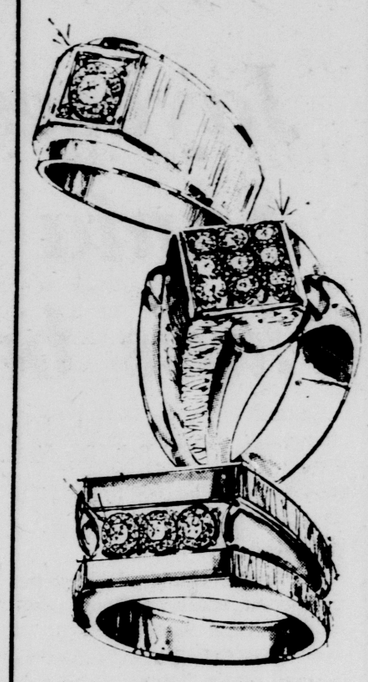

Egypt and Syria have both said the Palestinians should accept the creation of a state on the westbank and in Gaza, land Israel captured from the Arabs in June 1967. Israel has not offered to give up any of the territory.

The Damascus meeting of the 42-member PLO national council also produced Palestinian promises to honor the 1969 Cairo agreement limiting their operations in Lebanon, and a reconciliation between Al Fatah guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat and Zuheir Mohsen, leader of the Syrian-backed As Saiqa group.

Alleged Hastings payoffs called gifts of friends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An attorney for former Rep. James F. Hastings, R-N.Y., told a jury Tuesday his alleged kickbacks from three staff members actually were gifts and loans from "good friends" to help in a financial difficulty.

Hastings went on trial Tuesday on charges of padding the payrolls of a Washington secretary and two workers in his New York district to obtain kickbacks to buy cars, snowmobiles, boats, to pay college tuition of his daughters and meet other expenses.

Atty. Jacob Stein told the jury of eight women and four men that the three staff members voluntarily contributed parts of their salaries.

"All were at one time and still may be good friends of Mr. Hastings," Stein said. "They had a stake, so to speak, in his career and felt warmly toward him."

ASSISTANT U.S. Atty. John Kottelly said the government will prove Hastings increased the salaries of the three employes and each time received kickacks in the exact amount of the increases.

The former western New York lawmaker was indicted last September on 26 counts of mail fraud and nine counts of making false payroll authorizations to conceal kickbacks from three members of his staff.

Mail fraud carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $1,000 fine and a conviction for making false statements could ring up to five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

THE STAFF members were identified as Clair L. Bradley, an executive secretary with a $21,000 salary, and David C. Walden and Leonard B. Jones, who had part time work and salaries that changed from time to time in 1973-75.

Hastings, 50, resigned late last year from Congress and accepted a lobbying post with an industry association in New York State.

The indictment said Hastings received a $360 monthly kickback from his executive secretary from Feb. 1, 1971 to Aug. 18, 1972.

Staffer tells of paying marina bills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former staff worker for former New York Rep. James F. Hastings testified Tuesday he was paid up to $1,000 a month and instructed to use most of it to pay Hastings' bills at a marina in his district.

Hastings went on trial Tuesday on charges of obtaining kickbacks from three staff members to finance cars, snowmobiles and boats, pay his two daughters' college tuition, and meet other expenses.

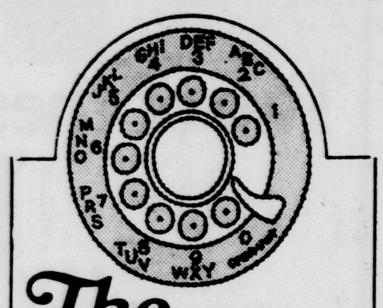

James C. Walden, who was a part-time chauffeur for Hastings, testified he received a base take-home pay of about $171 a month but that his checks became much larger during the summer and fall months. He used the excess for Hastings' account at the RK Marina at Lake Rushford, N.Y., he said.

"I would cash the check and take whatever was above the normal take-home pay and take it to the marina and apply it to Mr. Hastings' bill," he said.

Walden identified 12 checks in which he received excess amounts in 1973, 1974 and 1975. The checks ranged from $420.74 to $1,071.47.

The prosecution exhibits showed Walden received $1,000 extra for August, September, October and November 1975.

Walden also said the excess payments increased his income tax because he reported the entire amounts received as income while paying some of it to the marina for Hastings.

CB Horror

by Ed Landwehr

Citizen band radio sales have been so overwhelming that some manufacturers have cut corners on quality and minimum specifications. The results have been referred to as "CB horrors" — interference on TVs, radio, electronic garage door opening, record players and even public address systems and electronic organs. Now the CB system is expending from its 23 channel, and hopefully this will ease some of the trouble. Of course, owners of the older CB radios will have the extra expense to bring their equipment up to date for extra channels. Meanwhile regulations will be tightened to insure better set manufacturing.

We serve all kinds of electronics, and although television is our main line at LANDWEHR'S TV & APPLIANCES, we have the equipment and know-how to maintain CB radios and equipment. Give us a call at 255-0700.

Or visit our shop and store at 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. We have fine displays of all electronics to show you.

Carter inaugural events announced

The events at Jimmy Carter's inauguration were announced Tuesday, and Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., chairman of the joint congressional committee in charge of the plans, said it reflects Carter's wishes. The ceremonies will be conducted at the east front of the Capitol and more than 117,000 admission tickets will be distributed. The program will begin with a introduction by Cannon, music by the Marine band and the invocation by Bishop William R. Cannon of the United Methodist Church for the state of Georgia.

After the playing of the Battle Hymn of the Republic by the Atlanta University Center Choir, Carter and Walter F. Mondale will be sworn in as president and vice president. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill will administer the oath to Mondale and Chief Justice Warren E. Burger will swear in Carter.

After Carter's inaugural address, the benediction will be given by Archbishop John R. Roach of St. Paul and Minneapolis, and the program will end with the playing of the National Anthem by the Marine band.

$7,000 family income urged

A National Academy of Sciences panel, citing increasingly destructive pressures on families, Tuesday recommended hat every family be guaranteed an annual income of at least $7,000 a year for a family of four. The panel did not propose a specific plan for achieving a guaranteed annual income but said in a report to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare that some form of tax credit or negative income "is promising."

The committee said the family, as an institution, is on the skids and needs outside help like money and improved health care to cope with such pressures as rising divorces and births to unwed mothers. An estimated 20 million children receive inadequate health care or none at all, the report said. More than 3 million children live in families earning less than $5,000 a year. Some 1.8 million school-age children have no formal care between the hours of school closing and their parents' return from work.

Senate Dem post narrows

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., withdrew Tuesday from the race for Senate Democratic leader, saying at least five of his supporters would back Sen. Robert Byrd and give the West Virginia Democrat enough votes to capture the post. Hollings' withdrawal narrows the contest for the succession to retiring Sen. Mike Mansfield to Byrd and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.

A top aide to Humphrey said the Minnesotan "has no intention of dropping out at all. He feels good about it. He feels he can win the race." Hollings told a news conference he intended to vote for Humphrey but considered the contest "pretty tight."

Rhodesia conference recesses

Britain Tuesday adjourned the Rhodesia conference, deadlocked after 7 weeks of black-white bickering and internal wrangling among black nationalists. The conference chairman said he would launch an African diplomatic shutle before reconvening the talks on Jan. 17. British officials said chairman Ivor Richard will leave shortly after Christmas for Rhodesia and its surrounding "frontline" black states to lobby for a compromise formula for an interim government to run Rhodesia before black majority rule.

Chief escapes murder try

A top Christian leader escaped an assassination attempt in Beirut Tuesday in a bombing which destroyed his car and further split the quarreling Christian ranks. Christian Phalangist officials said a 10-pound TNT bomb attached to a timing device had been planted in the car of Karim Pakradouni and went off 30 minutes after he had left the vehicle at 8 a.m.

Pakradouni is a member of the politiburo of the Phalangist party — Lebanon's largest Christian political organization. He played a key role in negotiations with the Syrians at the height of the civil war. Christian rightist officials began an immediate investigation and the leaders of the main Christian groups met in emergency session to "contain the incident."

Close Cuba-Jamaica ties vowed

Prime Minister Michael Manley, fighting to hold power in Jamaica's violence-marred elections, said Tuesday there was "no way" he would alter Jamaica's close ties with Communist Cuba if his People's National Party won Manley's final appeal for votes came on the eve of voting held under a state of emergency in which Manley is holding hundreds of his opponents in detention camps, has banned all public gatherings and introduced limited press censorship.

The campaign sparked scattered violence. One government candidate, Ferdie Neita, was shot in the stomach and seriously wounded Monday. Singer Bob Marley was shot and wounded last week a few days before he was to perform at a Manley-sponsored concert.

Pope attacks abortion as a 'blow to peace'

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI Tuesday attacked abortion as "a blow to peace" and appealed to mankind to heed "the voice of innocent blood" in speech for World Day of Peace.

The 79-year-old Roman Catholic pontiff also warned that catastrophe "looms on the horizon of the future" unless world leaders learn that the cause of peace cannot be dissociated from the sanctity of life.

The papal speech, distributed in connection with the Catholic church's celebration of the World Day of Peace Jan. 1, also condemned terrorism, police torture and the world arms race.

Pope Paul VI

EXPANDING ON the theme, "If You Want Peace, Defend Life," the Pope said:

"Every crime against life is a blow to peace, especially if it strikes at the moral conduct of the people, as often happens today, with horrible and often legal ease, as in the case of the suppression of incipient life by abortion."

"Human life is sacred from the first moment of its conception and until the last instant of its natural survival in time," the Pope said. "Those who have had the misfortune, the implacable guilt, the ever renewed remorse at having deliberately suppressed a life know this and feel this.

"The voice of innocent blood cries out with heartrending insistence in the heart of the person who killed it."

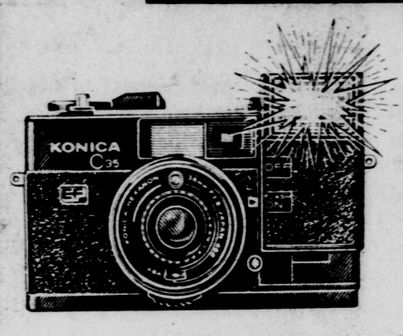

DENOUNCING THE arms race, the Pope said that "if, in defiance of logic, peace and life can in practice be dissociated, there looms on the horizon of the future a catastrophe that in our days could be immeasurable and irreparable both for peace and life.

"Hiroshima is a terribly eloquent proof and a frighteningly prophetic example of this," the Pope said.

The pontiff said life also is offended where people "make private vendetta a vile collective duty , terrorism a phenomenon of legitimate political or social affirmation, police torture an effective means of public power no longer directed towards restoring order but towards imposing ignoble repression."

Mother asks court to reconsider

Gilmore won't oppose execution

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Gary Gilmore broke a month-long hunger strike Tuesday and ordered his attorneys not to fight his execution, but the killer's mother asked the U.S. Supreme court to take a second look at his case.

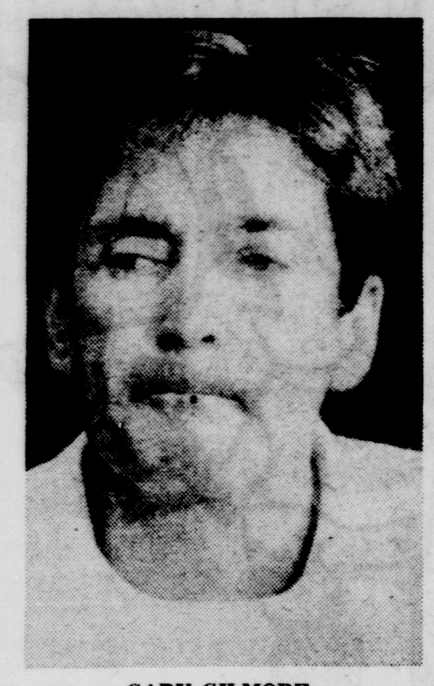

Gilmore ate a breakfast of french toast and cereal while his attorneys asked Utah's Fourth District Court to dismiss a petition which sought to have his death sentence tossed out on the grounds it wasn't imposed quickly enough.

In Washington, attorneys representing Mrs. Bessie Gilmore asked the U.S. Supreme Court to reconsider its decision Monday allowing the 36-year-old convict to face a firing squad.

LAWYER ANTHONY Amsterdam told the Supreme Court in a petition that the justices had violated their own rules in refusing by a 5-4 vote to hear Mrs. Gilmore's appeal.

Four votes normally are all that are needed to set a case for oral arguments, whch the court did not hear in the Gilmore case, although it considered some court transcripts.

Amsterdam said the purpose of the "rule of four" is to give minority justices the opportunity to convince "at least one other justice of the correctness of their views after the reflection which full briefing, argument and consideration of the record guarantees."

GARY GILMORE

THE ATTORNEY also raised the same objections he outlined in his earlier appeal. He said Utah court records were "utterly insufficient" to demonstrate clearly that Gilmore knowingly waived his rights to appeal.

"The speed with which this case has proceeded in all courts, including this court, precludes any assurance that the issue of waiver has been or can be determined on an adequate legal basis," Amsterdam said.

The court's action cleared the way for the state to set a third execution date for Gilmore, who admitted killing two young fathers during petty robberies last summer.

IF HE FACES the five-member firing squad, Gilmore would become the first man executed in the United States in nine years. His fate is being closely watched by approximately 330 other persons on death rows across the nation.

Gilmore has repeatedly said he would prefer death to spending the rest of life in prison.

But after the Supreme Court delayed his last date with the firing squad, he filed a motion to be freed from prison on the grounds the death sentence had not been carried out within a 60-day limit required by Utah law.

Following Monday's lifting of the stay, however, the convict directed his lawyers to withdraw the habeas corpus petition and seek a speedy execuon date.

"The plaintiff no longer desires to pursue the remedies set forth in the writ," said the dismissal motion filed by attorneys Ronald Stanger and Robert Moody following a late night meeting with Gilmore at Utah State Prison.

The way we see it

Tollway needs complete access

Not every suburban motorist wants to go to Chicago. Some of us want to go to other suburbs.

It's time to recognize — and alleviate — the "get-them-to-Chicago" bias built into the half interchange at Arlington Heights Road and the Northwest Tollway. Motorists can get on the tollway going east at that location, but they cannot take the tollway to Schaumburg or Elgin.

In addition, drivers eastbound from Schaumburg cannot choose to leave the tollway at Arlington Heights Road to get to Arlington Heights or Elk Grove Village. Instead, they are forced to exit at Ill. Rte. 53 and take local streets to their destination.

The Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce and the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce have decided to work together to correct this situation. The two groups have set as a major goal for 1977 construction of a complete tollway interchange at Arlington Heights Road.

Such an interchange is a clear necessity considering the increasing traffic volume in the area. We hope the Illinois Tollway Authority realizes that in the light of the efforts by the two chambers.

A complete interchange would improve the traffic flow between Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village and their western neighbors like Hoffman Estates, Barrington and Schaumburg. Congested traffic conditions on Higgins, Golf and Algonquin roads clearly show that these streets bear the brunt of suburban traffic headed west.

Land for a full interchange at Arlington Heights Road was dedicated when the first half of the interchange was built in 1970. The two chambers of commerce hope that in addition to improving suburban traffic flow the full interchange will entice businesses and industries to locate in the area, broadening the tax base.

The Illinois Tollway Authority says its priorities for spending are established and no expenditures are planned for new interchanges.

The present half interchange was built only after enormous pressure was brought by the community and after local backers educated tollway and state officials to the fact that it would receive heavy use.

That should not have been necessary and we hope a similar effort is not needed to complete the interchange.

The Illinois Tollway Authority should reevaluate its priorities in light of the chambers' request and the tremendous growth of the area, and they should budget funds for completing the interchange in the near future.

Did you hear that Illinois Tollway? Entrance north, exit south at Arlington Heights Road!

He led party comeback

Democrats owe victory to Strauss

by ARNOLD SAWISLAK
A commentary

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Years ago, the New Yorker magazine ran a cartoon that showed Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia arriving at City Hall.

The next couple of panels showed the old building rocking, rolling and nearly jumping off its foundations. The last showed it collapsing limply as Hizzoner departed for the day.

Something of that sort would be appropriate for the Democratic National Committee upon the departure of Robert L. Strauss, its chairman from December, 1972, through January, 1977.

Much has been written about the accomplishments of the Dallas lawyer-banker who took over the debt-ridden Democratic Party after its worst election defeat and brought it back to solvency and victory in 1976.

THERE ARE some who might argue that the Democrats could have won the presidency this year with a candidate other than Jimmy Carter, but few who watched the political scene in the four years just past would maintain that the party could have come back without Strauss.

Strauss did not restore unity to the Democratic Party. It still has factions that do not speak, and it still had disagreements that can raise the roof without notice. What Strauss did was make the warring Democrats sit down together and try to work together. In this, he accomplished a feat of mediation worthy of Henry Kissinger.

Strauss did not reform the Democratic Party. He was stuck with reform when he took over the chairmanship and he would never have lasted in the job had he seriously attempted to return party government to the top-down system that prevailed in the past.

WHAT STRAUSS did was make party reform work so that the Democrats could open their ranks to groups previously shut out and still go about the business of electing candidates for public office.

Strauss did get the party out of the red. It was about $9 million in debt after the 1968 election, and as treasurer and then chairman, Strauss got most of the bills settled. As part of this effort, he developed the political telethon to raise money. Buying costly national television air time to solicit funds was a gigantic risk, but it worked and it probably will be a permanent feature of the political scene.

Strauss did all this with a zest and energy that seemed limitless. Putting a Democratic whistle stop campaign train on the tracks was one of his fondest personal projects, and he worked for two years to get it done.

AFTER ALL THE complicated details were worked out and the train finally got under way in New York, Strauss alighted at every stop to warm up the audiences and introduce the local politicians and the presidential candidate. He and his wife Helen also served snacks to the reporters between stops.

His work for the first 14-hour day of the trip was just about finished as the train neared Pittsburgh. Strauss celebrated by blockading the aisle of the VIP car and leading a loud and raucous sing-a-long all the way into the station.

Strauss will be a hard act to follow.

Veteran mayors depart

In several Northwest suburbs, the gavel of the municipal presidency will be passed to new leaders next year.

Village presidents of Mount Prospect, Palatine and Wheeling — recognized leaders during times when their communities faced challenges of suburban growth and the financial problems of the 70's — have said they will not seek reelection. In Des Plaines, Herbert Behrel already has stepped aside.

Robert Teichert, Mount Prospect's two-term mayor, must be credited for leading Mount Prospect during a time of formulative growth of the community. Among other instances of his strong leadership, he was a powerful force for construction of the community's new library.

Wendell Jones of Palatine undoubtedly could have continued to receive the support of the Republican Party and could have been slated by the party again this year. Instead, he will retire after a fast-paced and forward-thinking administration.

Ted Scanlon of Wheeling, who served during the political corruption conviction of officials around him but who was not implicated himself, will relinquish Wheeling's village presidency after 12 years on the job. His tenure in office is a credit to him.

Among them, they volunteered decades to public service and should be acknowledged for that work. Their counsel in certain areas should be welcome to new presidents as they attempt to keep abreast of new challenges of community affairs.

Herald stand 'unfair to Brennan'

On Tuesday, Oct. 26, your paper asked its readers to vote for State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, (D-Arlington Heights), as opposed to Joan Brennan for the house of representatives in the 3rd Legislative District.

I can understand a paper voicing its opinion on the better candidate only with solid reasoning behind its choice.

Clearly, you disillusioned your readers by evading other issues and overemphasized the support given her by Democratic Chairman Richard J. Daley. The Herald said, "Chapman is a strong forceful legislator who is an important voice in the House." I think the handling of the candidates was poorly undertaken and you were not fair, as a paper should be to Joan Brennan or any other candidate. To tell people that because Richard J. Daley, who is the party's chairman of Cook County backed her, is not at all sufficient reasoning for a voter not to vote for such a fine lady.

She would have been an excellent legislator and better than Chapman is, or will ever be, I believe. Also, you as a paper were not fair to your readers with such a one-sided endorsement with no explanations. You were not fair to Richard J. Daley also.

Thanks to Kohl store

The people of Omni-House were deeply moved recently by the kindness of the personnel of the Kohl supermarket in Buffalo Grove.

Shortly before Thanksgiving a local family involving a mother and several children experienced the crisis of the mother losing a major part of her income. Thanksgiving looked very bleak, indeed. Our counselor, Mr. Phil Kirshbaum, told the story to Mr. Elliot Christenson, manager of Kohl's, who promptly donated a Thanksgiving dinner, including a large turkey, to the family.

Trustees await Spring Valley word

I'm writing in reference to the Herald's story of Wednesday, Dec. 8 concerning Spring Valley. I'd like to try to add some additional perspective to that story.

Discussion on Spring Valley has taken place for the past 18 months at the Village of Schaumburg's Safety Health Recreation and Environment Committee and has centered on the preservation of th enature sanctuary and what methods can be employed to ensure its integrity. The Village of Schaumburg has made a commitment to Spring Valley by pledging $100,000 almost 4 years ago, by passing an ordinance restricting development in Spring Valley and by working with developers of contiguous property to encourage donations and compatible development.

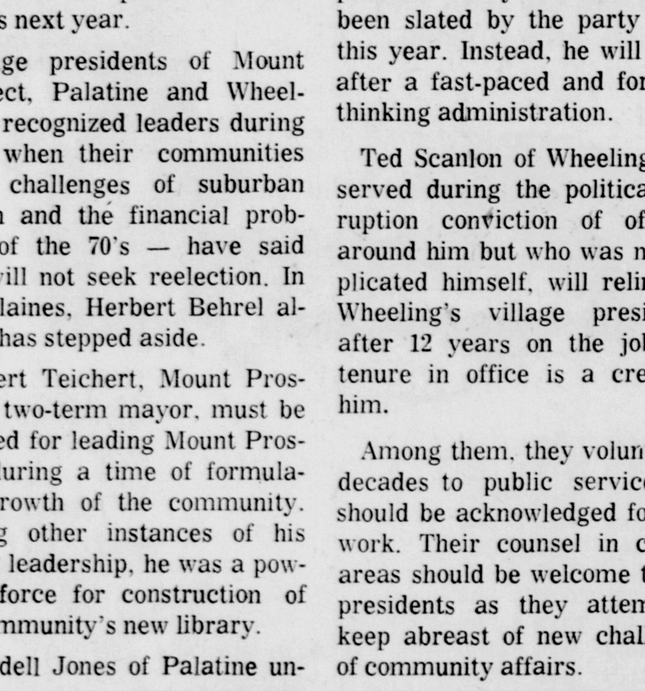

Because of the committee's concern, and because of the commitment made to the Spring Valley concept, Village Trustee Ed Olsen and I attended the June 24 meeting of the Schaumburg Park District to discuss Spring Valley with the park district commissioners and to reach agreement on some manner of covenanting lands acquired for Spring Valley to restrict their use to that of a nature sanctuary. The park board action that resulted at that meeting was a motion discussion with the village attorney to draw up an intergovernmental agreement and also a set of covenants that can be attached to any land purchased for Spring Valley restricting its use to that of a nature preserve."

Thd Herald's story of Dec. 8 refers to "an agreement restricting the land as a "nature restoration area" that has been prepared by park officials. For almost 6 months now, the committee has been trying to receive a copy of such an agreement. Ed Olsen and I came away from that meeting of June 24 with the idea that something would be done about the matter. We're still waiting.

Maybe we'll read it in the paper.

Tito's 'independence'

Yugoslav arms may go to Soviets

by NEA/London Economist News Service

BELGRADE — Recent top-level Russian and American visitors to Belgrade have turned the spotlight on the question of Yugoslavia's independence. Which is just what President Tito wants. He is anxious to make sure nobody in the West will be tempted, when he is gone, to write off Yugoslavia as a far-away country of which they want to know nothing.

So the secretary-general of the Soviet Communist party, Leonid Brezhnev, said in Belgrade — apparently as a condition for his visit — that Russia has no designs on Yugoslavia's independence. And the American Secretary of Commerce, Elliot Richardson, flew in later an drepeated the support of the United States for that independence.

Fine: President Tito wants people abroad, even if they know nothing else about his country, to believe that it is not, and does not intend to become, a Soviet satellite.

BUT THERE IS a snag. The Yugoslavs were not particularly alarmed when President-elect Jimmy Carter said during his election campaign that he would not send troops to defend Yugoslavia against the Russians. They had already heard more comforting news from Mr. Carter's special adviser, Averell Harriman, who came to Belgrade in September.

Harriman seems to have been talking mainly about American arms supplies to Yugoslavia. But one thing which may be holding up an American-Yugoslav arms deal is the Americans' fear that Yugoslavia might pass technical information — and perhaps even some of the hardware itself — over to the Russians.

Richardson disclosed during his visit that a team of American negotiators visited Yugoslavia a month ago to discuss a complaint that Yugoslav companies had in the past transferred to the Russians some advanced American computer parts they had imported from America. This particular matter was cleared up to the satisfaction of the American team. But to Americans who do not like the idea of selling sophisticated arms to any Communist country the affair has raised questions about Yugoslavia's independence.

THE YUGOSLAVS want to buy a lot of American weapons. Henry Kissinger is said to have been given a list of Yugoslav requirements when he visited Belgrade in 1974 which included electronic antiaircraft equipment, surface-to-air missiles and spare parts for the American tanks the Yugoslavs acquired about two decades ago.

Donald Rumsfeld, the American secretary of defense, says that the United States is prepared to sell helicopters and jet trainers to Yugoslavia; and American officials said last January that the Tow anti-tank missile was also under discussion. The Americans will presumably want to be quite sure that what they sell to Yugoslavia will stay in Yugoslavia.

"That's not what I meant by 'launder the money'."

Game teaches affirmative action

by LEA TONKIN

Roy Brant picks up a playing card and hands it to a fellow Motorla supervisor.

"What would you do?" he asks.

Reading the card, the supervisor quotes, "A woman applies for a job where good attendance is essential. She has four young children, ages 6, 4, 2 and 1. You may reject her on the basis of projected absenteeism and ask her to apply again when her children are older. True or false?"

BRANT, THE Schaumburg corporation's director of employe relations, awaits the supervisor's answer. If the manager says "false," it's good for a move three spaces ahead on a game board. The unlucky supervisor choosing "true" is directed on the playing card's reverse side to jump to "charge of discrimination."

The stakes are only play money and loss of face in a board game competition, yet Brant is leading the supervisors into serious study of equal employment opportunity programs.

At Motorola and other Northwest suburban companies, the message drummed into lower level managers right on up to the top brass is clear: affirmative action is everybody's business. The high cost of discrimination is one good reason to learn about fair treatment of minorities and other aspects of affirmative action. If that's not enough, managers discover their success in moving up the corporate ladder hinges partly on their success at EEO (equal employment opportunity) programs.

Brant believes the new Motorola board game called "EEO — It's Your Job" will make it easier for managers to cope with the complex, continually evolving affirmative action laws. Employes and jobseekers will be the ultimate winners in the game, he said. In addition to its use by Motorola employes, the game is being marketed to other companies.

THE GAME-PLAYING situation serves as a lively group introduction to affirmative action, a subject that could easily become deadly dull because of the voluminous state and federal laws and court decisions that make it work. Situations including everything from race to religious discrimination confront players as they attempt to avoid investigation, litigation and hefty dollar penalties in their moves around the board.

DISCRIMINATION COSTS," reads the board game played by Roy Brant, left, and John Millikin, Motorola employe relations specialists.

"We take managers twice around the board," Brant said. "In a couple of go-rounds, you'll find you lose control. It is quickly escalated and you gain two ideas. First, that discrimination costs money. Second, that day-to-day process of being a manager affects discrimination."

"It's an interesting, humiliating experience," Brant said. The game is followed up by a slide presentation to cover the law and its impact on a specific industry.

Extra playing cards are included in the game to allow tailor-made questions and answers. The game is later resumed, and managers learn how well they've boned up on EEO as the game progresses. "It's gimmickry," Brant said. "But we're driving home the basics."

MORE THAN 2,000 Motorola managers have already played the game. Brant is confident that its $500 price tag to outside firms is less than the cost of sending managers to training seminars. The proceeds will be used for community development programs.

Awareness training programs for managers are essential to equal employment opportunity programs, said Harriet White, Illinois Bell Telephone Co. equal employment manager in Chicago. Newly appointed managers at Bell participate in workshop programs. "Then we do what we call a compliance review," Ms. White said. Part of a manager's appraisal includes equal employment performance.

There's more to affirmative action than hiring workers for nontraditional jobs, such as the male service representative or the female cable splicer, Ms. White said. Training and advancement opportunities must be made known to all employes.

"For those who come in under an affirmative action program, we don't feel we're doing a good job unless we get them trained and they're performing the same kinds of jobs as people who were here before," said Karl Miller, Bell's district staff supervisor who works with Northwest suburban managers.

"Most Bell managers are former craft workers who are moving up through the ranks, so they're oriented to affirmative action," Miller said. "The feeling is that affirmative action is part of everybody's supervisory actions on a daily basis."

IF MANAGEMENT wants to make headway in its employment offerings to minorities and women, a company-wide campaign is needed, echoes Joe Kennedy, chief of the Chicago Defense Contract Administrative Management Area program. Based at offices adjacent to O'Hare Airport, Kennedy heads a staff of compliance officers who review equal employment programs run by government contractors and subcontractors in Illinois, parts of Indiana and Wisconsin.

Compliance reviews are carried out at some 400 companies a year, primarily in the electric, electronics, fabricated metals and foundry industries. "We take a systemic approach," Kennedy said. "It starts with recruitment, through treatment during the whole term of employment."

Affirmative action goals may topple tradition rather than official company policy. "Sometimes, for example, women and minorities get less pay for the same jobs or they may be placed in dead-end jobs," Kennedy said.

"Our people are systems oriented," Kennedy said. Compliance reviews include talks with everyone from the company's chief executive officer to supervisors, workers and union representatives in addition to paperwork review. A company that has made sure managers have done their homework on equal employment has the least trouble meeting action goals for hiring and promoting minorities, Kennedy said.

Laws cover discrimination

Discrimination in employe hiring, placement and promotion is remedied by a complex of federal, state and local laws.

For starters there's Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, amended by the Equal Employment Opportunity Act of 1972. Discrimination based on race, color, sex, religion and national origin is prohibited by the law.

A series of Presidential orders also deals with discrimination ranging from age and national origin to mental and physical handicaps.

The Equal Pay Act of 1963 bars sex discrimination for work requiring equal skills, effort and responsibility as measured in base pay, bonuses, commissions, etc.

Sections 500 and 503 of the Rehabilitation Act Amendments of 1974 bar discrimination based on mental and physical handicaps in company personnel practices.

The Age Discrimination in Employement Act of 1967 prohibits age discrimination against persons in the 40 to 65 year category.

Various other federal, state and local laws affect personnel policies.

For each of the laws, as outlined in a Motorola training program, the number of employers affected and method of enforcement will vary.

GM refutes Ford '77 sales predictions

General Motors Corp. chairman Thomas A. Murphy predicted Tuesday that car and truck sales in the United States next year will top the previous record of 14.6 million set in 1973. His forecast was in sharp contrast to a prediction made during the weekend by Henry Ford II, chairman of the Ford Motor Co. Ford trimmed 600,000 sales from an early projection and said next year's sales probably would not top 14 million. Backing up his optimistic outlook, Murphy said GM will spend more than $3 billion in 1977 for facilities and tools, a 25 per cent increase over this year and the highest in GM history. Total sales of cars and trucks this year, including imports, should exceed 13.3 million units — a 20 per cent gain over 1975, the worst sales year for the industry since 1962.

Pregnancy benefit options mulled

Feminist lawyers and representatives of women's groups met in Philadelphia Tuesday to consider legislative options to the controversial Supreme Court ruling regarding company health benefits for pregnant women. In its 6-3 decison last week in a case involving General Electric Co., the court said companies do not necessarily discriminate when they deny sick pay to women who miss work for childbirth and subsequent recuperation. Karen DeCrow, president of the National Organization for Women, said Rep. August Hawkins, D-Calif., and Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., were working on legislation to combat the decision. Ms. DeCrow, a lawyer in Syracuse, N.Y., described the Supreme Court ruling as a "slap in the face to motherhood. If people are paid sick leave when they're out for nose jobs, hair transplants and vasectomies, why not for childbirth?" she said.

He said any charges that his department covered up or ignored the falsifications were "utterly without foundation."

Agricultural land fund planned

The Continental Illinois National Bank of Chicago and Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc. have announced plans for a pooled agricultural land investment fund, which they believe will be the first of its kind in the nation. The Chicago bank said the fund's investments would be made in geographically diversified working farms that produce a variety of crops. The fund will be monitored by the bank's agricultural experts in its trust and investment services department. Continental will serve as the trustee and investment adviser for the fund and Merrill Lynch will act as the distributor, marketing the fund to corporate employe pension and profit-sharing plans.

Dow industrials hit 11-week high

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones industrial average Tuesday climbed to its highest level in 11 weeks as a late rally overwhelmed profit takers to drive prices higher in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow industrials, down nearly five points earlier, rebounded to gain 6.39 to 980.63, much of that in the last hour. It closed at the highest level since 990.19 on Sept. 30.

The NYSE common stock index gained 0.24 to 56.59 and the average price of a common share increased by 14 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, added 0.44 to 105.07.

Advances overtook declines; volume totaled 25,130,000 shares.

Prices rose in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased three cents. Volume totaled 2,900,000 shares, down from the 3,390,000 traded Monday.

Test aid centers promise students higher scores

Speaking dollar-wise

by Robert S. Rosefsky

If you have a child in high school looking toward college, or if you have a child in college looking toward graduate school, you're going to be hearing a lot about cram schools.

Cram schools, or test preparation centers as they prefer to be called, are a fairly new phenomenon. They've emerged just within the last few years all across the country, and they offer programs which they say will improve a student's chances of scoring higher on the critical entrance exams most colleges and graduate schools require. The fees for these courses may range from around $100 to many hundreds of dollars.

As with any new phenomenon (and most old ones) there are bound to be some rotten apples in the barrel. If a student bites into one of the bad apples he may actually diminish his chances for getting the needed grades, and thus jeopardize his entire educational career. The money thrown away on the course would be peanuts by comparison with the lost opportunities.

How important are these tests? Most colleges look at them as the great equalizer, giving them a base upon which to compare students from widely diverse backgrounds. All other things being equal between two students, the test scores can make the difference between acceptance for one, rejection for the other.

Regretfully, there are no specific guidelines as to which cram schools are good or bad, or proof that the good ones can actually produce their touted results.

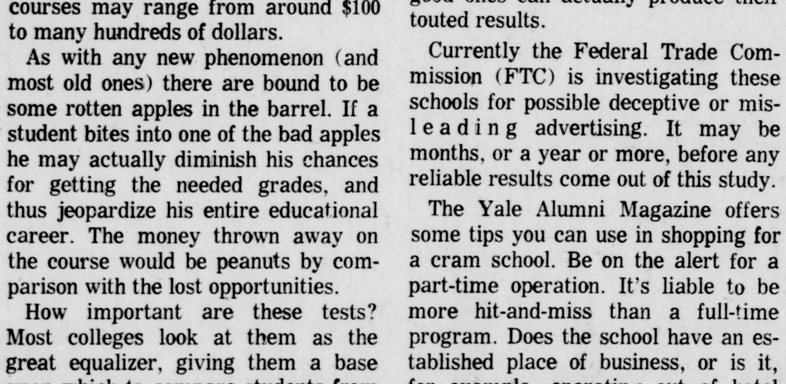

Currently the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) is investigating these schools for possible deceptive or misleading advertising. It may be months, or a year or more, before any reliable results come out of this study.

The Yale Alumni Magazine offers some tips you can use in shopping for a cram school. Be on the alert for a part-time operation. It's liable to be more hit-and-miss than a full-time program. Does the school have an established place of business, or is it, for example, operating out of hotel rooms and using answering services and post office boxes?

The schools may be helpful, but you have to first help yourself. Shop most prudently.

Community spirit an extra benefit

Many work together to help Ellen

The time and the effort which Vernon Township residents have put into raising funds for young Ellen Anderson have produced several benefits. The sum of $52,800 is the most outstanding one, but the sense of caring and community spirit are just as important to some of the people involved.

The money is being raised to help defray the medical expenses for 14-year-old Ellen, who lost her right leg when a hit-and-run driver struck her bicycle last August near Half Day.

Ellen's initial medical expenses were more than $30,000. With the rehabilitation she will need in the next few months, medical bills are expected to rise to $100,000, said Justin Fishbein, a Vernon Lions Club member who helped raise money for the Ellen Anderson Fund.

Ellen Anderson

WHEN ELLEN'S neighbors in Prairie View and Vernon Township heard about the accident they established the fund at the First National Bank of Lincolnshire to help her family with the overwhelming medical costs. Insurance benefits for Ellen amounted to only $8,000 with the possibility of another $10,000 from the state.

Last Saturday $10,885 was raised in a day-long event at Stevenson High School, Prairie View, said Michael Nelson, vice president of the First National Bank of Lincolnshire.

Another $16,000 was collected from a raffle Saturday and proceeds from numerous bake sales, garage sales, auctions and other events have produced the $52,800 total, Nelson said.

THE ELLEN Anderson Fund will also receive 10 per cent of Saturday's profits from stores in Long Grove and Lincolnshire. Nelson said the totals from the merchant associations in those communities have not been counted.

"One of the side benefits is that it's drawn all these communities together," Nelson said. "When the need is there these little communities — Prairie View, Half Day, Long Grove and Lincolnshire — can all forget their boundary lines and work together."

There really were no boundary lines, however, for those who wanted to help the Anderson family. Nelson said donations have come from other states and items have appeared in newspapers in places as far away as Florida and New Orleans.

"EACH TIME there was an article in the paper, there were more donations," Nelson said. He said the fund received some $1,000 contributions from anonymous donors.

Ellen's father, David Anderson, said the response of the community has been "tremendous" and the family is anxious to get thank-you messages to all who helped.

Anderson said Ellen is making good progress and is now able to get around on crutches. In January she will be fitted for an artificial leg at the Chicago Rehabilitation Institute and spend some time there learning to use it, he said.

Ellen has shyed away from all the publicity but she did join her family at Saturday's benefit. "She enjoyed it tremendously," Anderson said. And she agrees, he said, that all the people who got together to do the benfit are "quite marvelous."

Prints on Hughes' will to be studied

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A county judge Tuesday ordered Nevada Atty. Gen. Robert List to present in court Dec. 28 all information available about fingerprints found on the $2.5 billion "Mormon will" of Howard Hughes and the envelope in which it was enclosed.

District Judge Keith Hayes also postponed a scheduled Jan. 10 jury trial on authenticity of the document after attorneys told the court there was reason to believe the envelope bore the fingerprints of Utah service station attendant Melvin Dummar.

Dummar, who was not in court, was named a beneficiary of 1-16th of the eccentric billionaire's fortune in the will, which was left on a desk in the Mormon church headquarters in Salt Lake City three weeks after Hughes' death last April.

LOS ANGELES attorney Harold Rhoden, who has been pressing the will as genuine, said he would accept that it probably was a forgery and withdraw it from probate if Dummar's prints are found.

Judge Hayes said, however, that the trial on the will's authenticity would proceed at a later date even if such fingerprints are found.

"This case is not going to be left in limbo," Hayes said.

"If the proponents of the will do not come forward there will still be a trial."

Attorney James Dilworth, representing three Hughes' relatives and Summa Corp., the umbrella holding company for most of Hughes' property, has said the FBI has established that Dummar's fingerprints were on the envelope and on a book and magazine containing samples of Hughes' authentic handwriting.

HAYES DIRECTED that List present all evidence that law enforcement agencies have, including fingerprints.

The judge approved chemical tests on the paper and ink in the document, primarily to establish its age. The will was dated 1968.

That information presumably also will be made available at the Dec. 28 hearing.

Dummar has said his only connection with Hughes came in 1968 when he gave a ride to a sleazy hitchhiker in the Nevada desert. He said the man told him he was Howard Hughes. Dummar said he let the man out in Las Vegas, gave him a quarter and dismissed the affair until he learned he had been named to receive more than $100 million.

Ask Andy

Fire—energy using chemical change

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Rocky Withers, 10, of Gastonia, N.C., for his question:
IS FIRE A SOLID OR A GAS?

Our world is made of solid, liquids and gases, and these things are made of invisibly small atoms and molecules. This statement may be a bit misleading because it does not include happenings. in a fire, solid logs burn and give off sooty smoke, invisible gases and gritty ashes. Yet the fire itself is one of these things. It is a chemical happening that uses energy to change solids into gases and other substances.

Countless different chemical reactions go on all the time throughout the world of nature. All of them are busy rearranging atoms to create different molecules of one substance or another. In the process some of the chemical reactions use energy, while others give off energy. When a blazing fire rearranges the molecules of a fuel, it gives off energy in the form of heat and light.

The logs used to light a campfire come from a tree that was once a tiny seedling. As the seedling grew, it used atoms from the air, water and dissolved chemicals to build woody molecules for its trunk. Naturally the work of building molecules to form the boxy tree cells required energy — which was supplied by the sun.

When the tree is cut down, the logs can be used as a fuel. It takes more than just fuel to have a fire, however. You must also have heat and lost of airy oxygen. A wad of burning paper provides enough heat to start smallish branches burning; the branches provide enough heat to cause the logs to burn, and soon we have a roaring campfire. The heat of the fire releases the energy that bound the woody molecules together and it is given off as heat and light.

The fire itself is neither a solid nor a gas, and it's certainly not a liquid. It is an energetic happening that releases energy bound up in the molecules of a fuel.

Just as heat, oxygen and a fuel are necessary to start a fire, you can put out a fire by removing one of the three. When water is sprayed on a wood fire it absorbs heat from the burning wood and lowers its temperature. When the temperature falls below the kindling temperature, the fire goes out.

Bath coup goes down drain

Today's hand is an example of a Bath coup variation. North's two-spade call is one of those modern cue bids designed to announce a good hand. North happened to have first round spade control and some ideas for a slam, but he didn't have any great slam interest.

South's two-notrump rebid ought to have shown a better spade holding than jack-small, but South just wanted to discourage any slam ideas his partner might have. North was discouraged and settled for three notrump.

Three notrump played by North would be the normal contract for his hand and it would go right down after East opened a spade.

South as declarer had a really good chance to make it. He ducked the king of spades lead and if West had shifted to any other suit or had led a low spade everything would have come up roses for South. After long study West decided that his only chance would be to continue with the queen of spades and hope to pickle South's jack so West led the queen and ended South's chance for success.

An Ontario reader wants to know what to do with:

Spade A, K, x, x, x, x. Heart x. Diamond A. K, x, x. Club K, x.

Our right hand opponent has opened with four hearts. We are vulnerable and he is not.

We bid four spades. We may be landing miles deep in the soup, but we are far more likely to find ourselves winning game and rubber.

WE'RE HAVING A GRAND OPENING AND A CHRISTMAS PARTY. AND YOU'RE INVITED.

After three years in our temporary quarters, First Federal is celebrating the opening of a beautiful new office on Rand Road in Mount Prospect. And what a perfect season to have a celebration.
Our ribbon cutting will be at 11:00 a.m., Wednesday, Dec. 1st. Santa Claus heads up the festivities, but there'll be sports stars, contests, gifts and refreshments for everyone from December 1st right through Christmas Eve.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 4, 10:45 A.M. TO 12:45 P.M. What does Bill Madlock do when he's not winning batting titles for the Chicago Cubs? Ask him. He'll be at the party to talk with you and sign autographs. And to draw the winners for 5 autographed baseballs.

To find out what Santa really looks like, we're going to ask the experts—your kids. For the best drawings of "Santa and His Reindeer," we're giving away First Federal savings accounts. Entries accepted from December 1 to December 18.

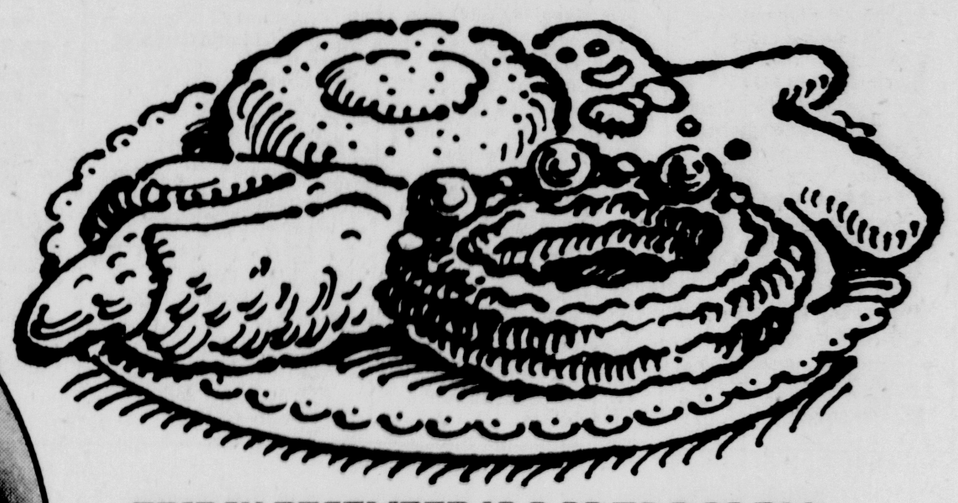

ALSO ON DECEMBER 18, 10:00 A.M. TO 1:00 P.M. Meet First Federal's man of the season—Santa Claus. He may not be signing autographs, but chances are good your kids will want to talk to him anyway.

Here's a touch of Christmas spirit for you. Your choice of a beautiful Christmas centerpiece of artificial fir and dried flowers, accented with a bright red candle and bow, or an arrangement of dried baby's breath and pinecones in a handsome wicker basket. Either one is free with a deposit of $250 or more in a new or existing savings account at our Mount Prospect office *only.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 11, 10:00 A.M. TO 1:00 P.M. Is Eric Nesterenko as tough in person as he was on skates for the Black Hawks? Meet him, get his autograph and find out. There'll also be a drawing for five pairs of Black Hawks tickets.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10, 6:00 TO 8:00 P.M. Who bakes the best cookies, cakes and pastries in the northwest suburbs? Enter our Christmas Baking Contest, and we'll decide. Winners will each receive a $50 First Federal Savings Account, or a free cookbook. (For details, stop by the Mount Prospect Branch.)

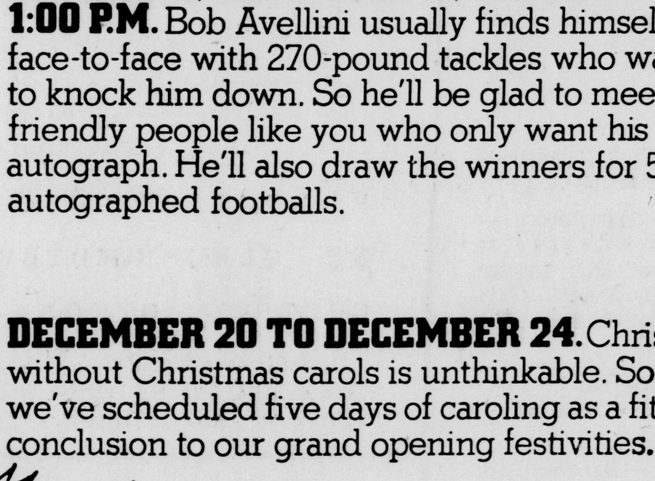

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 18, 11:00 A.M. TO 1:00 P.M. Bob Avellini usually finds himself face-to-face with 270-pound tackles who want to knock him down. So he'll be glad to meet friendly people like you who only want his autograph. He'll also draw the winners for 5 autographed footballs.

DECEMBER 20 TO DECEMBER 24. Christmas without Christmas carols is unthinkable. So we've scheduled five days of caroling as a fitting conclusion to our grand opening festivities.

*Offer good at our Mount Prospect office only December 1-24. Supply is limited; one gift per family. Sorry, no mail orders. Offer may be modified or cancelled without notice.

Housewives

Poll respondents divided whether they ought labor for love or pay

The only difference between a wife and a servant is that the wife works for nothing.
—George Sand 1804-1876

by BARBARA LADD

For some women scrubbing floors and cooking dinners are labors of love. For others, the dishwashing, diapering and dusting are mundane, tedious tasks which have to be performed by someone — the wife.

For everyone, housekeeping duties are work.

Traditionally, this work is unpaid; it comes with the marriage license and society's expectation of women's role. It is rewarded by room and board and an "allowance" if the husband is generous. Not everyone is happy with this arrangement, however.

The Herald conducted a survey last month to discover what readers believe about such controversial topics as payment and Social Security benefits for housework. Inquiries were also made about the value society places on full-time homemaking and the satisfaction housewives derive from their job.

The results were informative and thoughtful.

NEARLY 250 MEN and women from the Northwest suburbs answered the survey, many writing several pages of opinions, personal experiences and frustrations. The resulting statistics are in no way scientific — they are simply a compilation of the responses.

Of the 246 respondents, 55 per cent felt that housewives should be paid for their work in the home. Those most inclined to support payment to housewives were under 60 years old and female.

"Homemakers would feel they are recognized and reimbursed for their real contributions to a home and family," reasoned an older Palatine Township woman. "And wages for housework would hold the power part of the time on what gets spent how in the family."

"I feel like a leech . . ." wrote a middle-aged woman.

"Every other employed person is paid," said a much younger Arlington Heights housewife.

And a 29-year-old Schaumburg homemaker complained:

"My 'home chores' are as much my work as my husband's job is his. Yet he has a salary and I get nothing. If I died tomorrow, he'd pay a lot to the professional who'd take over, right?"

BUT 44 PER CENT of the people disagreed with or were unsure about payment to housewives.

Their reasons varied: "Housework is a labor of love," one middle-aged registered nurse wrote. "This is their duty," another explained. "In the long run it would come out of my husband's salary," a young Rolling Meadows woman said.

"A paycheck would reduce my role to that of a paid, menial servant instead of a loving wife and mother taking pride in her role," commented a Mount Prospect homemaker.

Of the persons who wished for salary benefits for housework, 41 per cent believed the government should dole out the money; 28 per cent said the husband or other family members should pay; 12 per cent indicated that both government and the spouse should be responsible. Six per cent said the spouse's employer and big business should pay the housewife.

BUT 13 PER CENT were unsure who should pay. They said friction could develop between husband and wife if he was "boss." They pointed out that mothers on welfare already received money for housework and taxpayers would be unable to support the additional burden of all homemakers.

There was considerably more agreement on the question of Social Security. Nearly three-fourths (73 per cent) of the men and women thought women should be earning their own Social Security credits for full-time work at home instead of relying upon their husband's.

"I am particularly concerned about the woman who is divorced in mid-life after raising a family and contributing to the community in non-paying jobs," commented a 39-year-old Palatine resident. "Many times these women do not have current work skills that can be used in the job market — and they have to also face the problem of age discrimination. . ."

Presently, a wife divorced after fewer than 20 years of marriage loses all eligibility for a husband's Social Security benefits. Even if she is divorced after 20 or more years of matrimony, she would not be eligible for a benefit until her husband retired or died, and she would lose all eligibility if she remarried.

THOSE WHO VETOED Social Security benefits for housewives claimed that the system was already crippled and that the extra stress would demolish it.

Half of the readers who responded to the survey thought that full-time homemakers have status in the community. Age and sex seemed to make a difference in the answers.

Men generally attributed status to homemakers; the number of women who thought that status is awarded to full-time homemakers increased through the mid-twenties to the mid-forties, as school activities and other family-related community involvement reached their peak. Once the children were gone, many women no longer credited status to the homemaker. Respondents who gave status a positive mark dropped from a 63 per cent high in the 40 to 49-year-old age group to a mere 33 per cent in the over-60 segment.

"When asked on applications, 'Do you work?', why must a housewife answer 'no'?" asked a middle-aged Arlington Heights housewife. Commented a younger Des Plaines mother, "My 6-year-old son asked why I couldn't be something like our neighbor who is a nurse."

A Hoffman Estates woman explained: "You won't find a soul who thinks homemakers are workers. Since they don't earn money, they can't even open accounts. They are like slaves."

AND A TEST ENGINEER, a 32-year-old male, wrote: "Homemaking should have status, but it doesn't. We all need food, shelter, clothing and health care to survive . . . But the routine involved has lessened the importance, so we deny its value while not being able to live without it."

Despite the lack of value attributed by some to homemaking tasks, the majority of women who are or had been full-time homemakers were satisfied with their role. They loved their husbands and children and they felt worthwhile.

About 58 per cent of the women expressed satisfaction throughout their homemaking career; 11 per cent said they had been satisfied for awhile — usually until the children headed off to school.

The loudest voice of dissatisfaction came from the 20 to 29-year-olds.

A 21-year-old woman said, "It (housework) was monotonous, and I wasn't able to fulfill my goals and dreams and use my creativity . . ."

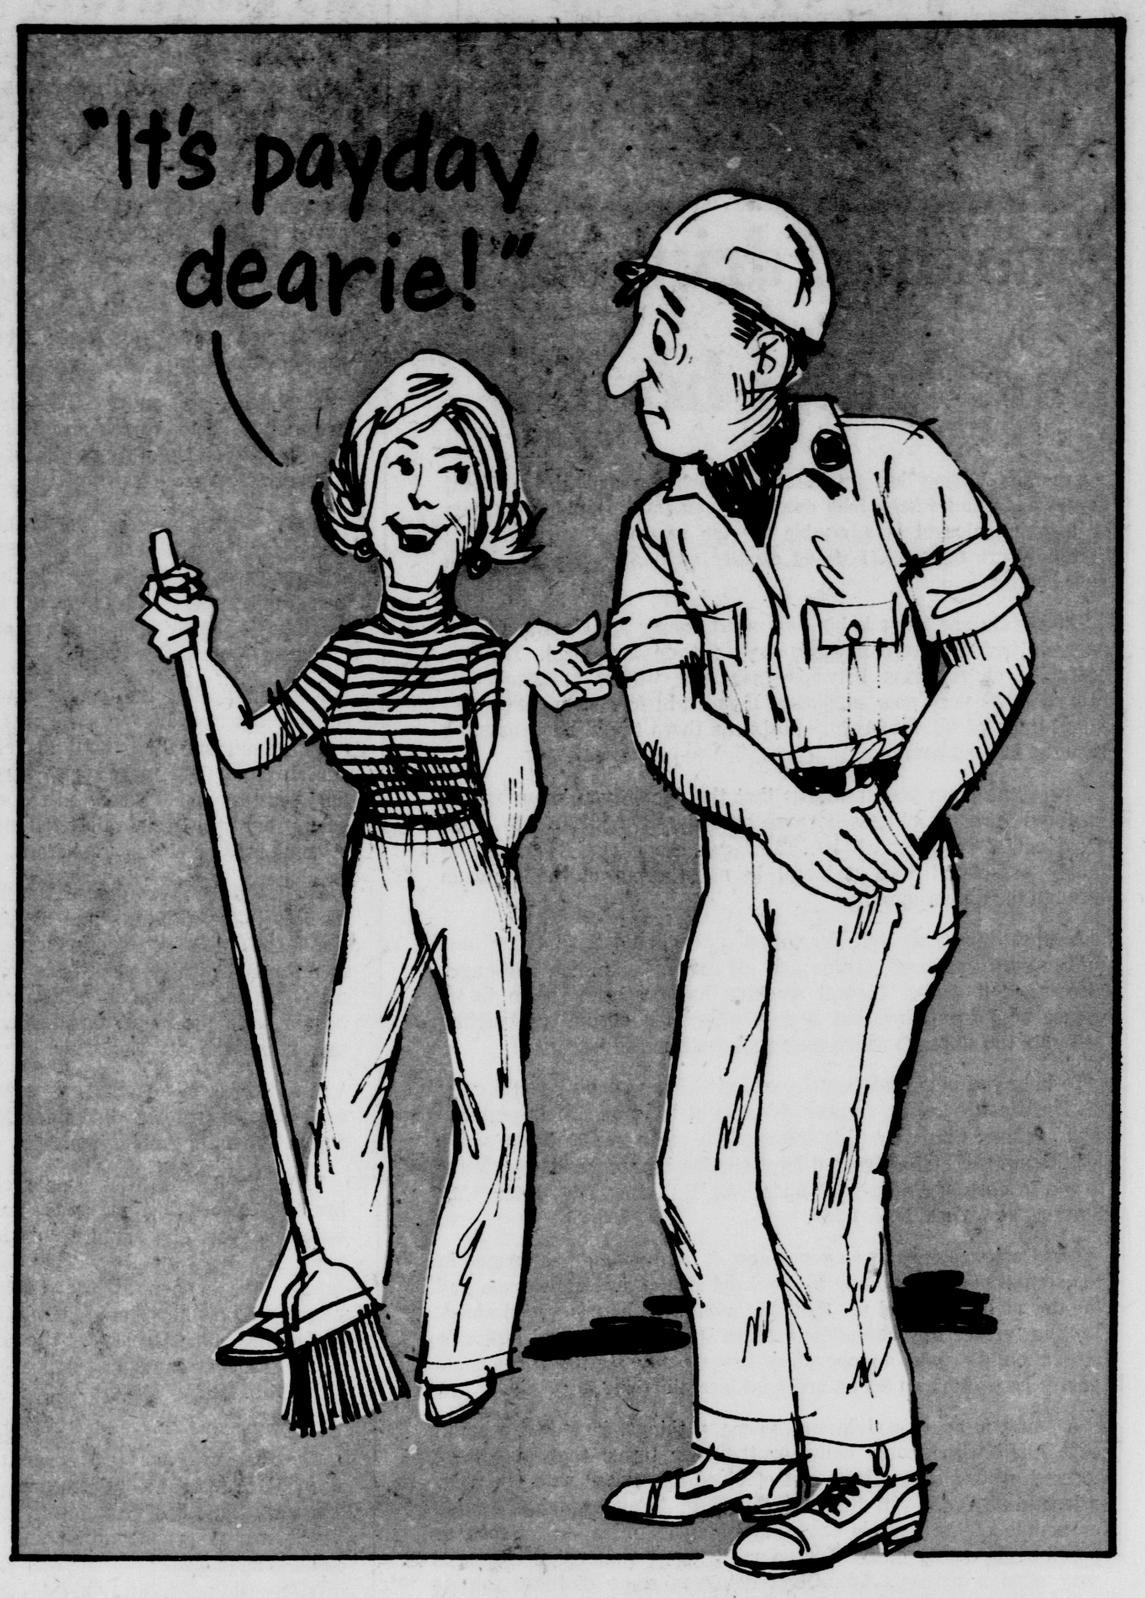

And a 25-year-old Mount Prospect homemaker, who is happy with her job of family and home, wrote:

"The major problem of full-time homemaking is a tendency to social isolation, especially in the suburbs. If you do not have a second car or access to some mode of transportation, being able to get out of the home and meet other people . . . can be difficult."

BUT MANY thought the difficulties of full-time homemaking could be overcome with effort.

". . . I do see many lazy housewives who have allowed themselves to fall into a rut," admitted a Hoffman Estates woman in her early thirties. "They watch countless hours of TV and have failed to develop into individuals. They have lost amibition for anything. However, I have to regard those situations as reactions from society's non-recognition," she said.

"If we have learned anything from the women's liberation movement it should be that there are quality choices a woman can make," she concluded. "Whatever she chooses should be done wisely and with the conviction that hers will be a unique contribution. . . ."

Love doesn't pay bills: Selma James

by BARBARA LADD

Half of the world's population — the female half — is involved in that tedious, never-ending job of housework, said Selma James of London, England, at a Northeastern University seminar.

"That job brings in no money at the end of the week, the end of the month, the end of the year or the end of a life," she declared.

And she's right . . . so far.

Ms. James founded the International Wages for Housework movement in 1973. She visited the Chicago chapter earlier this month.

She contends that without the work contribution of the housewife the economy would fall apart. "So why should it be free?"

WHILE MANY WOMEN respond that love of husband and family is the reason, Ms. James counterattacks by saying that love doesn't pay bills, it doesn't gain a woman her independence or status in family and community, it doesn't make her an equal with the man.

"That word equality tries to hide the fact that there's no such thing as equality between the sexes unless we women are rid of housework or paid for it," she said.

But capitalistic societies do not value the work of the housewife because it is not supposed to be productive, she continued. "Yet we are extremely productive and we're working like hell. Our home is our factory and what we produce is the basis of society — the working class. Just the thought of it is exhausting."

BESIDES REARING children, women give emotional support to the employed members of their families so the others are able to do their paid jobs, she said. "We provide physical comforts and give physical therapy — everyone here knows what I mean, too."

Yet women are forced to depend upon the husband's or man's generosity because he has control of the money.

"We learn at an early age when to shut up, when to dress up and when and how to ask for what we want. Society knows that. On income tax forms there's a space for us under 'dependents,' " she scorned.

This power relationship would begin to crumble if government pays women for their very real work, she maintains.

IF MONETARY VALUE were placed on housework, more women would stay home to rear their children instead of working two jobs — a paid one outside of the home and the still mandatory one within, she said.

Women no longer would be expected to perform housekeeping duties like getting coffee for the boss when they work outside the home; women's salaries would be more comparable to the men's, she added.

"If we were paid for our work, society would really have to tempt us out of the home if they wanted us to work other jobs," concluded Ms. James.

Columnist objects to teacher paddling children

Women and children first

by Julie Martoccio

Dear Mrs. Martoccio,

Recently at a club meeting six mothers were assigned to a group discussion about whether a teacher should be permitted to punish a child physically. Believe me, there was a good deal of pro and con! Finally, someone suggested to write to you for your opinion. Do you believe that a child should be spanked by a teacher? — R.T.

Dear R.T.,

By a teacher? No way. We have enough violence in this world without foisting even a small amount of it on children and I willingly give equal time in this column for an opposing viewpoint.

This is my opinion in spite of the Supreme Court ruling that in order to maintain discipline, a public teacher may paddle an unruly student providing the student is warned of the punishment and that it takes place in the presence of another school official.

In the first place, I am wary of any agency taking over yet another personal responsibility — especially another parental duty — even if the authority is granted by law.

My next objection is that there is, and always will be, a question of interpreting terms such as "paddle" and "unruly" as they relate to infraction of school rules of conduct. Does discipline relate to punishment for chewing gum, passing notes, maybe laughing or day-dreaming? How about tardiness, or talking back to a teacher? And does paddle mean a little, medium or much force on the backsides and how can we determine the amount of force to carry it out?

There are entirely too many undernourished, emotionally disturbed, unwanted, unloved, physically ill school children whose problems either go undetected or are undetectable to chance physical punishment where medical, spiritual or mental help is needed.

In my opinion another objection to paddling concerns children in the lower grades. If a high school student is guilty of striking a teacher, stealing, etc., he may be brought before a court of law, be represented by counsel and speak in his own behalf. For lesser offenses, he may still speak up for himself to teacher or administrator. But the younger child can hardly be expected to understand completely or defend at all times the nature of his act or its consequences. Whom does he have to speak in his behalf at the time of the physical punishment?

I'll admit there were a few times during my Chicago public high school teaching days when I was tempted to hit a genuine "unruly" student, but I didn't trust myself any more than I did some of the teachers. Please note I am saying some, not all, were, in my opinion, unfit to teach and lacked emotional stability because their judgment of punishment depended upon their moods.

I am not defending those who would strike or injure a teacher who has every right to defend herself/himself and even strike back if necessary to protect herself/himself. But there are other more civilized forms of punishing children and it is up to those who must administer the rules to find the most effective means to punish violations without physical abuse.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Smoking, drinking hurt hiatal hernia

A person I know has an inflamed esophagus and also a hiatal hernia and cannot keep food down. Do you think smoking cigarets or drinking alcohol is advisable for the person? I keep nagging that they are harmful. I would greatly appreciate any answer in your column.

The person you know is his own worst enemy and deserves to be nagged. Unfortunately nagging may not do any good. Through centuries of relations between men and women, nagging has proved to be very poor medicine. If you will forgive my exaggeration, think of all the healthy husbands there would be if nagging resulted in good health.

I presume from your remarks that the person you know has an irritated lower esophagus because acid-digestive juice leaks backward out of the stomach into the lower esophagus. This is commonly associated with a hiatal hernia (hernia of the stomach through the diaphragm).

Alcohol increases the formation of acid-digestive juice and makes matters worse. Coffee and all caffein-containing beverages also make it worse. Cigaret smoking has not been shown to increase acid formation, but it may affect the normal contracting action of the stomach which may aggravate the situation.

To help you help that person you know I am sending you a copy of The Health Letter number 4-8, Hiatal Hernia, Esophageal Reflux. Others who want this information can send 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I had a vasectomy three years ago. A hard nodule has formed in the scrotal sac. The nodule is about the size of an English pea, and the doctor has assured me that it is nothing to be concerned about. Do you foresee any complications? In the event I should desire to sire a child, could an operation reverse my sterility? Or could sperm be withdrawn for an artificial insemination?

A small lump or nodule can be many things, including a small cyst filled with sperm cells, or the scar tissue that may have formed around a small amount of blood associated with the operation. In any case you did the right thing. Anyone who has a lump or nodule of the testicle should have an examination as soon as possible. In some cases it is a malignancy and early diagnosis may save a person's life. Don't delay as some of these tumors spread very rapidly.

You should consider a vasectomy as permanent at the time you have it done. Some urologists claim a 25 per cent success in restoring fertility by re-operating on the vas and rejoining it. Success is not success unless sufficient healthy sperm cells are released to enable pregnancy. Recently microscopic operations, perfected by a few surgeons, have been credited with better results.

Withdrawing sperm by a needle after a vasectomy has been performed may not be successful. Sometimes the testicle stops forming an adequate amount of viable sperm cells after the vas is tied. Sperm banks have been used to store frozen sperm before a vasectomy is performed, but these are not well regulated in every instance and no one can guarantee you how long the frozen sperm will really be usable.

I don't think you need to worry about that lump since you have had your docotr examine it, but your chances of regaining fertility are not outstanding.

For pound cake fans: this one freezes well

One of the nicest surprises last holiday season was the arrival of a great pound cake Jonel Monroe had made, frozen and mailed. Naturally, I asked for the recipe. She calls it "Old-Fashioned Kentucky Pound Cake." Cream together two sticks butter or margarine with one-half cup hydrogenated shortening and three cups sugar. Add five eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each egg is put in. Sift together three cups all-purpose flour with one-half teaspoon baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Add this alternately with one cup milk. Finally, add one teaspoon vanilla and three-fourths teaspoon pure lemon flavoring. Bake in a large tube pan that has been greased and floured. It takes one hour and 15 minutes at 325 degrees. When cool, sprinkle with powdered sugar. I can testify how well this pound cake freezes, and Jonel has concluded it actually is better after it's been frozen. At any rate, for pound cake enthusiasts, this is it.

Dear Dorothy: I'm one of those who has been compelled to study all about low-sodium diets. I think it would help if you mentioned that anyone on a low-sodium diet who used antacids should check carefully on the sodium content of the various products. Some are much higher than others, especially the fizzy ones—Joseph Bernstein

Dear Dorothy: Reading about carpet odors, I thought you might be interested in my experience. A practically new bedroom carpet began to develop an odor because of an ill person who was incontinent. I tried just about everything to get the odor out and was in the mood to throw the carpet out. As a last resort, I tried the old standby, baking soda. Sprinkled it all over generously and rubbed it in lightly with the fingers. I left it that way for about two weeks before vacuuming. No odor at all. What a simple way to save a carpet!—Mrs. John Vititoe

Carl Tagges sweethearts as children

Although they've been married "only" 50 years, Carl "Rusty" Tagge and his wife, Bessie, have been sweethearts since the seventh grade in Central School, Des Plaines.

It was there they met when Bessie moved to Des Plaines from Chicago and found Rusty among her classmates. He was born in Jefferson Park (Chicago) to the Ernst Tagges, but the family moved to Des Plaines when he was three.

After attending Central School (now torn down), both Rusty and Bessie went to the old Maine High School on Thacker Street (also torn down).

THEY WERE married on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 25, 1926, in the home of Bessie's parents, the Dwight Cowlins. Performing the ceremony was the Rev. Walter Pieper of Immanuel Lutheran Church, Des Plaines.

Quite naturally, the young couple started married life in their hometown, remaining there until 13 years ago. In 1965 they moved just across the border into Mount Prospect, where they still live, so they felt right at home in their new surroundings.

Rusty's father was one of the first barbers in Des Plaines, and his shop was a gathering spot for the oldtimers in town. Both Rusty and Bessie recall many of the names of those who helped build the small farming community into the city it is today.

Mrs. Tagge, his mother, is now 90 and living with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Urban, in Park Ridge.

THE ANNIVERSARY couple celebrated 50 years together on the exact date this year, and again it coincided with Thanksgiving Day. The entire family had dinner at Old Orchard Country Club, later greeting relatives and old friends at a party at the home of the Tagges' daughter, Mary Alice, now Mrs. Roger Neitzke of Mount Prospect.

The Tagges have two other children, Carl Jr. of Mount Prospect and Patricia Beisell of Anamosa, Iowa. There are 11 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

After working for Ma Brown Pickles and preserves in Chicago for 49 years, Rusty retired in 1967 as plant superintendent.

Luminaria still on sale by Mt. Prospect Juniors

Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club's annual sale of luminaria for Christmas took place Saturday at the local community center. However, some of the candle kits are still available and may now be ordered by phone.

The luminaria, candles embedded in sand inside an open paper bag for outdoor display on Christmas Eve, are selling at five kits for $1.

They may be ordered from club members Mary Ann Maffia, 439-9494, or Shirley Brucki, 259-9827, until Dec. 23 or until they are all sold. Each kit contains a small brown bag, three cups of sand, a candle and instructions.

Lighting the luminaria, which means little fire, is an old custom in Mexico where small pieces of wood were burned to "light the way for the Christ Child."

The current tradition in Mount Prospect, begun four years ago by the Juniors, is to set the bags along sidewalks or driveways, five to 10 feet apart, to make a row of twinkling lights from 6 to 10 p.m. Christmas Eve.

PROCEEDS FROM the sale of kits will help purchase equipment for the Brain Research Institute, which has a new research center at the University of Chicago.

The Juniors also recently donated pairs of mittens and Golden books to area Headstart children and collected usable toys for the Marine Toys for Tots crusade.

A Christmas party was also planned for the club members' children. They saw a puppet show and had a visit from Santa.

Soroptimists offer training award

Mature women who need help in order to qualify for better positions, or in order to reenter the job market, may apply for assistance from Soroptimist and McCall Life-Pattern Fund Training Awards. In the Northwest suburbs, applications are being processed by Soroptimist International of Des Plaines, with Eleanor Rohrbach, City Clerk of Des Plaines, serving as chairman.

Each club in the Midwestern Region may submit its local winner's application to the regional competition, where two awards of $1,000 each will be presented. In addition, an award of $2,500 will be available due to the efforts of noted television actress Marlo Thomas and the McCall Life-Pattern Fund.

The Life Pattern Fund will be financed over the next two years by sale of special Life Patterns modeled by well-known women such as Billie Jean King, whose pictures appear in th ecompany's monthly pattern catalog.

According to Mrs. Rohrbach, applicants should preferably be over 30 years of age (but not limited to this age), be either the head of household or have family financially dependent on her, and preferably not have completed college or university.

Women who feel they qualify for this program may obtain applications or further information by writing to Eleanor Rohrbach, City Clerk's Office, Des Plaines Civic Center, 1420 Miner St., Des Plaines 60016, or calling her at 297-1200. A prize of $100 will be presented to the local winner, and all entries and two personal reference forms should be returned to her by Jan. 1.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Haug

Margaret Scheffel– John R. Haug

A couple whose paths crossed while both were residents of Gatehouse Apartments in Arlington Heights were married Nov. 27 at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Des Plaines. Margaret Ann Scheffel, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd G. Scheffel, Mount Prospect, and John Richard Haug, son of Mrs. Rita M. Haug, Erie, Pa., exchanged vows and rings by candlelight at 2:30 p.m.

Margaret wore a white jersey gown embellished in lace and pearls. Her long veil cascaded from a beaded cap, and she carried a bouquet of white japhet orchids, white mums and stephanotis.

Her attendants wore high-necked gowns in shades of red brick, persimmon and apricot. They carried gold daisy mums, persimmon carnations and small red flowers among dried wheat and ferns.

MATRON OF HONOR was Mrs. JoAnn Percel of Chicago. The groom's three sisters, Mary Elizabeth, Joanne Marie and Kathleen Marie, served as bridesmaids. Junior bridesmaid was the bride's sister, Lila.

John chose Stanley Percel as his best man, with Daniel Allen, Palatine; Dennis Burke, Elk Grove Village; and the bride's cousin, Christopher Cole, Brooking, S. D., serving as groomsmen.

A reception at Brigante's in Chicago for 100 guests followed the ceremony. For their honeymoon, Margaret and John spent a week in Hawaii before returning to Arlington Heights.

Margaret, who works at Lutheran General Hospital, holds a degree in nursing from the University of Iowa. She is an Alvernia High School graduate. John earned his degree in electrical engineering at Carnegie-Mellon University, Pittsburgh, and is currently working toward his master's at the Illinois Institute of Technology. He is employed by the Communications Division of Motorola, Inc., in Schaumburg.

Laura Youman– Gerald D. Stevens

A two-week honeymoon in Hawaii followed the wedding of Laura Barbara Youman, daughter of Mrs. Skip Youman, and Gerald D. Stevens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Stevens, all of Hoffman Estates.

The Nov. 6 double ring ceremony was held in the Community Church of Rolling Meadows at 4 p.m. A rust, brown and apricot color scheme was featured.

Laura's sister, Cynthia, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Holly Donat, Elgin; Aimee Stevens, the groom's sister; and Colette Wagner, Hoffman Estates. Laura's niece, Liane Gae Graessle, Broomfield, Colo., was junior bridesmaid.

TWO OTHER nieces from Broomfield served as flower girls. They were Sheri Lynn Graessle, 8, and Lisa Kay Graessle, 5.

Gerald's twin brother, Gene, was best man, and groomsmen were his brother, Tom; Eric Brown, Rolling Meadows; and Tom Powell and Steve Engels, both of Hoffman Estates.

A sit-down dinner reception for 150 guests followed at Catania's Club in Chicago.

Laura and Gerald are both graduates of Conant High School and attended Harper College. Before her marriage Laura worked at J.C. Penney's district office in Rolling Meadows and was co-owner of Youman School of Dance, Schaumburg. Her husband is assistant manager of the Redwood Inn in Sultana, Calif., where the couple are living.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald D. Stevens

A reminder to brides

If wedding bells will soon be ringing in your family, we want to hear them, too.

The Herald reminds brides-to-be of the deadlines in effect for reporting wedding news. Full information is printed on forms available in all the Herald offices.

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions) information is due within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story or caption.

Accompanying picture should be a black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. At the discretion of the editors and the Herald photo department, color photos may or may not be used, depending on color tones, contrast and clarity. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proof. Better yet — have the photographer make a selection and send it immediately to the Herald office. Any delay may mean missing the deadline.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

The bride who wishes her photo returned may pick it up at the Herald office at 217 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, or send along a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Like the Fashions of the season, hair for the holidays goes loose, full and has movement . . .

never looking stiff or set. Whether short - which seems most popular - or gently resting on the shoulder, her hair should have an "attitude" of gentle elegance without being presumptuous, just like the woman of fashion who wears it.

Seek decriminalization of profession

Ladies of night band together

DENVER (UPI) — Between the sheets lobbying, media pressure and masquerade balls are among the devices modern prostitutes use in their campaign to end harassment and arrests, according to the organizer of the national hookers union.

"All you need for a basis is a hooker, a lawyer and a media person and you can really raise hell," said Margo St. James, founder of Cast Off Your Old Tired Ethics, better known as COYOTE, during a recent Colorado speaking trip.

The 20,000 member organization has fought for decriminalization of prostitution for three years. Hookers have banded together with citizens to end harassment of ladies of the night.

PROSTITUTES, or working women as Ms. St James calls them, not only have to contend with the traditional arrests for practicing their profession, but are harassed by police when they report a robbery, assault or a rape.

"The cops come and ask 'Who are you kidding' when a prostitute reports a rape," she said. "A lot of girls are ripped off by their tricks and beaten, but forget about getting police help."

Decriminalization, rather than legalization, of prostitution has been the major aim of COYOTE because working women would be free of government interference in the form of taxes, licensing and other regulations.

"WE HAVE ALWAYS preached to clients about decriminalization and prostitutes have always been pretty militant among themselves, but now we are beginning to get the community involved," Ms. St. James said.

One of the most effective tools have been masquerade balls with the now annual event in San Francisco attracting more than 5,000 persons including Jane Fonda, Lily Tomlin, Jack Nicholson and Shirley MacLaine.

"Sure it's kind of a radical chic, but that's just fine with me," said Ms. St. James. "It's a good chance for the community to meet hookers face to face and a lot of women really get off on dressing up like prostitutes."

TASK FORCES IN 14 cities are the active troops in the hookers' cause, she said. The groups are made of up hookers, lawyers, community members and interested persons who monitor the legislature and the police and try to change opinion.

T-shirts, buttons and national speaking tours are other methods Ms. St. James uses to swing public opinion.

"Most studies find that most people think the police have better things to do than hassle prostitutes," she said. "It is just a matter of the task forces making sure the cops realize it."

MS. ST. JAMES said the basis for criminalization is the inability of men to accept women's sexuality and the double standard.

"Everyone trades on sex — look at advertising — but at least the whore is honest about it," she said. "And hooking is one of the few jobs where women get paid what they are worth which threatens most men."

According to Ms. St. James, the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment in some states has proved to be an effective tool for COYOTE because it requires equal enforcement of the law and the man must be arrested with the prostitute.

"SINCE IT WENT into effect, they have been arresting preachers, cops, doctors, sportscasters and lawyers with working women and that has made a whole lot of people more sensitive to the problems," she said.

According to Ms. St. James, 60 to 90 per cent of a hooker's customers are politicians, something which gives prostitutes a unique opportunity to express their views.

"You could say we have been sleeping with the enemy, but prostitutes have traditionally used the encounters to speak in favor of decriminalization of what they do," she said.

The campaign has been going well by Ms. St. James' estimation, although community participation has occasionally backfired.

"One area got really hostile by having prostitutes in the neighborhood so the housewives dressed up in curlers, housecoats and sneakers to parade in front of the girls' homes and scared all the tricks away," she said.

London hookers go electronic

LONDON (UPI) — Prostitutes at Heathrow airport are using beeper radio systems to discreetly ply their trade, police said Tuesday.

The call girls are called on their pocket-size beepers, known here as bleepers, by some nearby hotel staff members who are bribed to solicit customers, police said.

The prostitutes rent the beepers, similar to those used by doctors, policemen and executives whose offices need to contact them quickly, from Britain's Post Office for $160 a year.

Persons asking the right hotel worker for a girl are told to wait while a secret telephone number that activates the bleeper is dialed. The prostitute then telephones back to arrange the meeting, police said.

"The bleepers make the whole thing much more discreet," one policeman said. "It is much easier than hanging around bars and lobbies and being harassed by police."

Brings in 'more durn business'

Lyric captures bootmaker's soul

DALLAS (UPI) — Charles Dunn was already a legend in those circles where men take pride in what they wear on their feet.

Then along came Jerry Jeff Walker, famous for writing the song "Mr. Bojangles" and put Dunn's legend to music.

"That song brought in more durn business. I had orders from people as far east as Minnesota," said the balding slim gent with the lively brown eyes, batwing ears and battered black Basque beret.

It sounds better put to music but "Charlie Dunn" pays rare tribute to Dunn's craft, in part, like this:

"WELL, IF you're ever down in Austin, Texas,

"A little run down on your sole

"I'm gonna tell you the name of a man to see;

"I'm gonna tell you right where to go.

"He's working in Capitol Saddlery,

"He's sewing in the back of the place.

"He's old Charlie Dunn, a little frail one

"With a smile and a leathery face."

"I ESTIMATE I've made over 200 pairs of boots a year, and over 55 years, that's a lot of boots," said the 78-year-old Dunn, picking fastidiously at a neatly trimmed thumbnail.

"I've made boots for Ernest Tubb, Gene Autry, Jerry Jeff Walker, Rusty Weir and a lot of football players like Bobby Layne."

Dunne is a third generation bootmaker who was 6 when he went to work for his father as an apprentice and spent five years learning the trade.

His reputation for craftsmanship and style came as an employe of Buck Steiner at the Capitol Saddlery in Austin. That's where Walker got his first pair of Dunns and became inspired to put Charlie to song.

ONE LESSON in shoemaking he learned the hard way.

"One day I fixed a man's heel while my father was at lunch and I put the 50 cents in my pocket. When I got back from lunch my father asked me why I did it and I told him. Then I asked him how he found out.

"He said the man brought his boots back because I'd left a tack sticking up. From then on brother, I ain't ever left a tack sticking up," Dunne said with a quick grin.

Dunn, who retired three years ago, said it takes about two full days to make a single pair of plain boots. The fancier the boots are the longer it takes. And the more expensive they become.

"THESE WOULD cost about $350," Dunne said, pulling up his left pants leg to display a soft black boot of ostrich leather. His name is written in 24 carat gold leaf on kid skin.

Dunn, who had three brothers who also were bootmakers, laments the lack of interest in the trade today.

"I wanted to teach it when I retired but the government wouldn't let me. I would have had to pay the minimum wage, even to a apprentice," he said, "and I couldn't afford it."

BOOTMAKER Charles Dunn was already a legend in those circles where men take pride in what they wear on their feet. Then came along Jerry Jeff Walker and put the legend to music.

Conservative coalition formed

Crane group seeks GOP head

by STEVE BROWN

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, Tuesday announced the formation of a coalition of backers of President Gerald R. Ford and Ronald Reagan aimed at electing a conservative spokesman to head the Republican Party.

Crane, a conservative who directed Reagan's presidential campaign in Illinois this year, said he is not a candidate for the post, which is being vacated by Mary Louise Smith.

Crane said a group of 60 congressman and senators want the party to elect a chairman who will serve as spokesman for party principles adopted at the Republican National Convention in Kansas City.

THE MOVE counters comments from several prominent Republicans who have called for the chairman's post to be filled by a "technician" rather than a spokesman committed to a specific idealogy.

Some suggested a technician would help ease the split between Reagan and Ford supporters and bring Democrats and liberal independents into the GOP.

Crane said that effort is trying to play "me too" politics with Democratic programs. He said there are more gains in attempting to attract conservatives into the Republican ranks.

Crane said most of the newly formed coaliton were supporters of Ford during the election.

IN A STATEMENT released by Crane for the group the call went out for the election of a chairman who would follow the party platform.

"Our party needs a chairman who represents the traditional principles articulated in the 1976 party platform adopted in Kansas City," said Crane.

The congressmen met with 18 other congressmen and members of the Republican National Committee Tuesday before releasing the statement. He said U.S. Sen Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., also attended the session. Laxalt was Reagan's national campaign chairman.

OTHER ILLINOIS congressmen who are part of the coalition include U.S. Rep. Edward Derwinski, R-4th, Edward Madigan, R-21st, and George O'Brien, R-17th.

While Crane said he is not backing a specific candidate at this time, he suggested Treasury Sec. William Simon or U.S. Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y., wuld be acceptable choices.

Crane said he is not considering a bid for the top leadership post himself because of new GOP rules which require that party chairman to take the position on a full-time basis. He said that prohibition keeps a number of prominent Republicans, both in and out of government, from seeking the job.

Crane confirmed that several GOP leaders had approached him about the job. He said he will probably seek an increased role in GOP policy decision in the next two years.

Recalls wedding day

Second Mrs. Bob Martin tries to prove marriage

PIERRE, S.D. (UPI) — Like many wives, Pat Martin has vivid memories of her wedding day. She thought it unusual that her husband — not usually a big spender — slipped the Justice of the Peace a $50 bill.

Mrs. Martin, now widowed and the mother of five, is involved in a legal tangle trying to prove she really married former state Director of Economic Development Bob Martin and that he is the father of her five children.

Martin died of a heart attack in October and it was learned then he was leading a double life, keeping two wives and two separate families.

PAT MARTIN SPENT a frustrating day in court Monday trying to prove she married Martin and that her five children were fathered by him.

"It's hard on my kids," she said during one of the several court recesses. "They are still trying to understand that their daddy is dead and that they won't see him anymore."

She has traveled to Pierre from her new home in Kansas to testify three times aand says she just wants to settle things up and return to Kansas, where she and her children can lead normal lives again.

"I just want to make this Christmas the best possible for my kids," she said.

MARY LOU MARTIN, Martin's other wife and the officially recognized widow, remained poised and detached while Pat Martin recounted her marriage day, Feb. 14, 1968.

Pat Martin has yet to turn up a marriage license.

"We had talked about marriage often," Pat Martin said. "In fact, Bob talked about it more than me. He said he was separated from his wife and that he had three sons. That's about all I knew."

Then Pat found out she was pregnant with Sarah and told Martin she didn't want to see him anymore unless they could make a life together. Finally Bob told her he was granted a divorce.

"I picked up Bob at Kansas City airport and we drove to Topeka, Salina — we just drove and drove. Finally we ended up in a town Bob called York, Neb. It was a real small town, and the house was ordinary. We went in and were married by a justice of the peace."

PAT RECALLED that Martin gave the justice a $50 bill.

"That was unusual," Pat said, somewhat resentfully — "Bob wasn't a real big spender."

Late Monday afternoon, lawyers for the two Mrs. Martins met and agreed to drop the question of parentage if Pat's five children take blood tests. Such tests cannot prove Martin fathered the children, but would indicate whether he could have and prove conclusively that he did not.

The judge ordered that the results of the blood test be sent to him in 10 days.

Bulls treat record crowd to big win

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

The Doctor, Julius Erving, came to Chicago for the first time in a Philadelphia 76er uniform and 19,690 people came out to see him do his stuff Tuesday night.

Instead, they saw the Chicago Bulls put on a team defense that held the Sixers' $6-million man to nine points and saw Scott May, college basketball's Player of the Year in 1976, come of age as a professional as the Bulls won their third straight, 101-88.

The Bulls took the lead at 23-21 in the second quarter and never trailed as May, who guarded Erving, and his 6-foot-8, 230-pound running mate at forward George McGinnis, played the best defense of his young career.

"THEY ARE without a doubt the finest pair of forwards ever to play the game," May said. "I'm young, but I don't think you can get much better than that."

Erving was the sole reason that more people came to see the game than ever before in Bulls' history. But with only nine points, and just two in the second half, Erving left the game with minutes remaining to a round of boos from the largely unimpressed crowd.

As for McGinnis, he took charge in the final two periods, hitting 17 of his game-high 21 points in an effort to bring the Sixers back from deficits that ballooned as high as 20 points in the second half.

THE WIN, the fifth in six games for Chicago, also depended on another now-common team defensive effort. The Bulls have held their last four opponents — the Boston Celtics, Los Angeles Lakers, New Orleans Jazz and 76ers — to roughly 27 points below their scoring averagaes.

"We had problems convincing these guys that the team defense was sound," said Bulls' coach Ed Badger. "Now they are starting to believe in it and more importantly, they are starting to believe in themselves."

May, who admitted he gets "wobbly legs" after his bout with mono, also stressed the team aspect of the game.

"I CAN'T SAY this is my most complete game," he said. "I just try to play the best I can and do what they tell me."

"When you're playing somebody like Philadelphia, you just can't throw your jocks out on the floor. You have to be ready to play your best.

"And playing in front of 19,000 folks," May remarked, "makes you try that much harder."

MAY TOUCHED off a standing ovation in the second quarter when he stripped McGinnis of the ball in mid-dribble and scooted downcourt to hit a 15-foot jumper. Former Indiana teammate, John Laskowski, followed with a steal of his own and drove the length of the court and dropped home a layup to force a 76er timeout with the Bulls on top, 34-24. This coaxed the fans out of their seats for a roaring tribute.

May finished the night with 16 points while Mickey Johnson and Artis Gilmore, who led the Bulls to a 51-47 rebounding advantage with 14 and 16 boards respectively, each dumped in 18 points.

"WE HAPPEN to be one of those teams that when we come in, teams are at an emotional peak," said Philadelphia 76er coach Gene Shue, who admitted he didn't have an answer to the problem. "We're ready to play, but the other teams are really ready. It's physically and mentally impossible to be ready for all 82 games."

The crowd came ready to cheer Erving's every move, but ended up going wild over the Bulls who played a hustling team defense and took the good shot, so good that they hit 15 of 20 attempts from the field in the second period to race out to an 18-point first-half lead.

"I don't react to the crowd, just try to play my game. Things just weren't falling tonight," said Erving.

THINGS WEREN'T falling for his team, either, as they were held to 88 points, the lowest point output this season by the 76ers, who average 111 per contest.

Erving praised Bulls' center Artis Gilmore as "one guy who should never be out of there. The last time around (when the Bulls played at Philadelphia) he was struggling.

"Now I'm struggling."

Erving evening a bomb

by BOB GALLAS

Julius Erving spoke in a voice so low that it could barely be heard as he meticulously folded away each piece of his uniform.

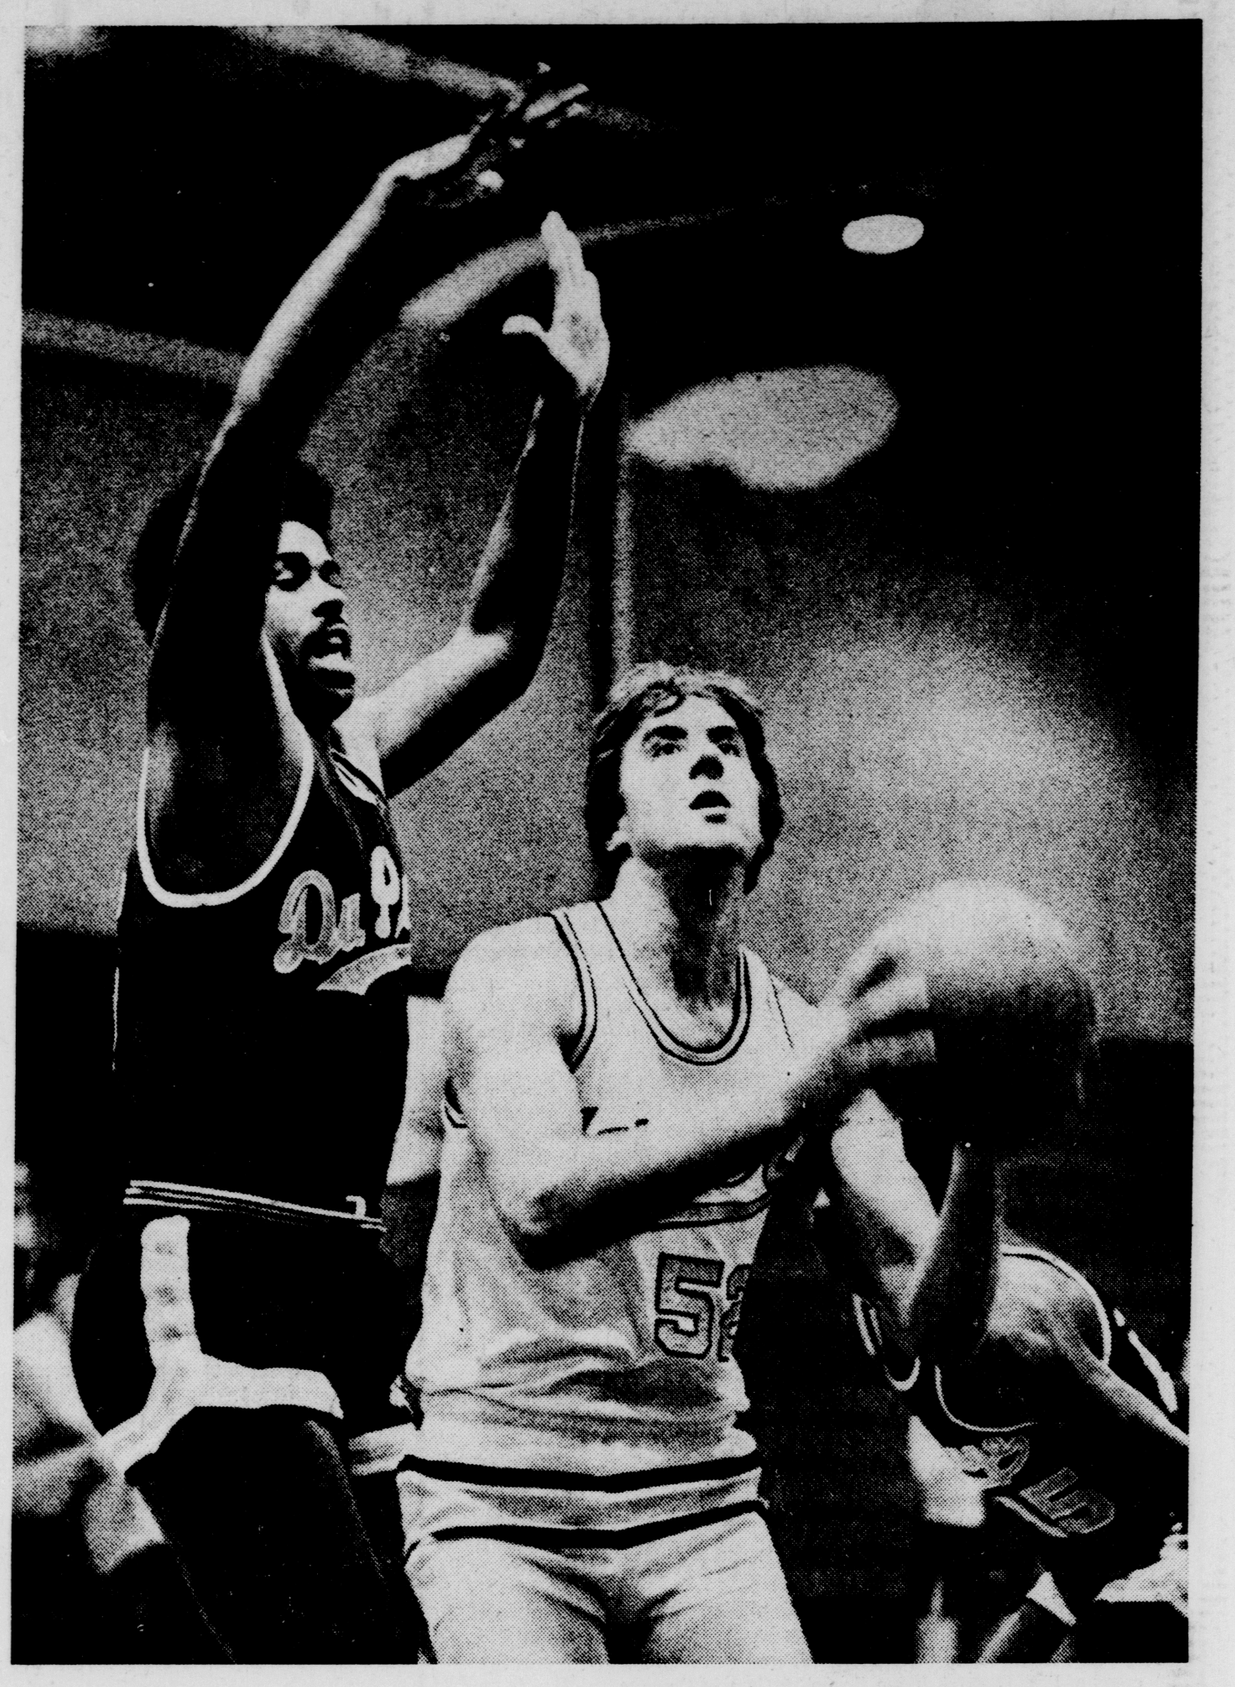

"This game doesn't involve an individual putting on a show, but that seems to be something that turns people on," said Erving, better known as "Dr. J."

The slumping doctor, made his first house call on Chicago Tuesday and found the Bulls sky high. The end result was a night of frustration for Erving.

''EVERY TEAM we play against seems to have its best game," said Erving, who was held to nine points.

The record Chicago Stadium crowd of 19,690, came to see the Doctor, just as 15 other sold-out houses have done so far this season. But what they saw may have caused some doubt as to whether Erving is the real $6-million man.

What they did see was a superstar who missed wide-open shots, got easy layups tipped away, and scored only one bucket over the final three periods.

LOOKING FOR TWO. Harper's Scott Green tries to shoot over Mark Bowman of DuPage in junior college basketball action Tuesday night at St. Viator. Green finished the night with seven points, but DuPage, led by 6-10 Mike Robinson's 20 points, won the game, 82-72.

Robinson and DuPage soar past Harper 82-72

by ART MUGALIAN

Mike Robinson was right where you could expect to find him Tuesday night. In Harper's hair.

The 6-foot-10 DuPage center made life miserable for coach Roger Bechtold and his Hawks on the second night of N4C basketball action. Robinson scored 20 points and pulled down 22 rebounds as the Chaparrals, now 2-0 in league play, disposed of Harper, 82-72. The Hawks are 0-2 and 3-5 overall.

"Robinson was definitely the difference tonight," said Bechtold, after he watched the mammoth Hirsch High graduate methodically destroy the Hawks under the boards.

"WE HUSTLED, we played as hard as we could possibly play," Bechtold continued. "But that big guy out there was just too much for us to handle."

Robinson, who had scored 20 when DuPage beat Harper in the season opener, got off to a slow start Tuesday at St. Viator. While teammate Tom Rowley picked up the offensive slack for the Chaps, Robinson netted just four first-half points. Rowley finished the night with 12 points, but he had 10 of them in the first half.

And with Robinson failing to get his share of tips and rebounds on the offensive boards, DuPage could manage just a narrow, 36-31 intermission lead.

Hot-shooting Harper guard Ken Hanks, with four baskets in the first half, helped keep the Hawks in the game. Hanks, a 5-8 Fremd grad, was high-point man for Harper with 16 points.

BECHTOLD'S CREW led early, 10-6, as Mike Nichol and Jim Arden hit buckets to break a 6-6 tie. Then, after DuPage opened up a nine-point edge, Harper came storming back to cut the lead to 34-31 on two baskets by Hanks, one each by John Carbery and Scott Green, and a pair of free throws by Dan Breen.

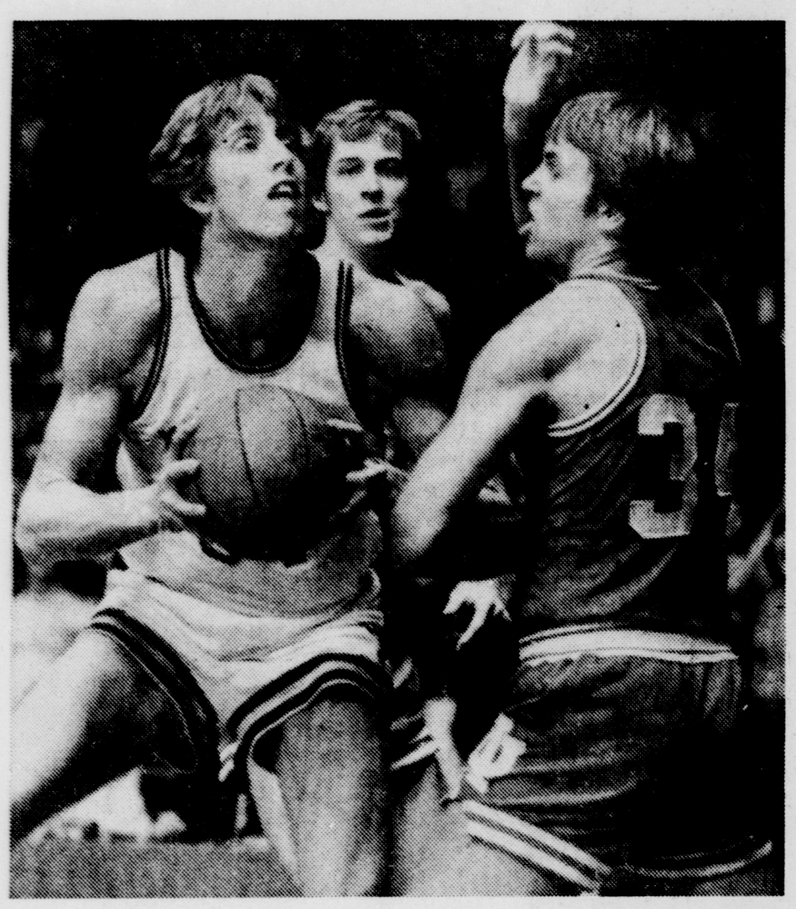

"Defensively, we did a good job in the first half," said Bechtold. "We did a great job on Robinson. But he's THERE. He's strong and he wears people out. If you don't keep him off the boards with his great arm-reach, he's going to kill you."

And that's what Robinson did to Harper. Getting good outside help from Chris French and Dan Williams in the second half, Robinson patrolled the boards, pulling down nine offensive rebounds alone. Every time Harper drew within nine, Robinson went to work.

BASKETS BY ARDEN and Hanks cut the lead to 76-69 with 2:20 left, but Robinson was fouled and converted one of two free throws. Teammate Steve Long put in the rebound on the missed shot for two of his 12 points.

Then Robinson's three-point play at 1:46 sealed the victory.

Breen and Nichol had 12 points each for Harper, while Arden, playing despite stomach cramps, had 10.

NOTRE DAME'S Bruce Flowers, left, makes a move on Indiana's Rick Valavicius in action Tuesday night in South Bend. The host Irish pulled away in the second half for an impressive 78-65 victory. Details on page 2.

Buffalo Grove storms over Glenbrook North

by KEITH REINHARD

Paced by a rejuvenated Brian Allsmiller, Buffalo Grove put together a 25-point second quarter barrage and rolled over visiting Glenbrook North 82-73 in a non-conference basketball test Tuesday.

The final outcome was hardly indicative of the way things went. The Bison owned a substantial 74-49 advantage when coach Paul Grady began pulling his regulars out of the game early in the fourth period.

A rash of Grove personals and 6-7 Spartan Bill Chinetti's busy windup at the free throw line allowed the visitors to look respectable while dropping their seventh contest in eight outings this season.

GRADY WAS ALL smiles afterwards, a not so customary situation for him after previous wins. "We're getting there," he said. "Up until now we've been playing about 50 per cent up to our potential . . . tonight we hit the 60 per cent level."

That high plateau was struck by complementing Allsmiller's play with some aggressive efforts from Fred Heesch, Scott Groot, Mike Ledna and especially Mike Marshall. "This is Marshall's second strong showing in a row," Grady added. "We're really starting to show some balance now."

GBN jumped ahead 7-4 under the gun but the hosts quickly caught up and traded baskets with them the rest of the quarter. In the second period Allsmiller hit four of five outside jumpers in succession, Groot kicked in with a pair of layups and Marshall canned two free throws and then stole the ball and converted a 12-foot jumper to send the Bison on their way. By halftime the Central Suburban entry trailed 43-30.

Allsmiller finished with 24, Groot had 18 points and seven assists, Marshall had 16 points, Heesch had 11 and Ledna kicked in with six assists as the Grove upped their overall mark to 7-1.

Girls decide volleyball title at Buffalo Grove

Something new has been added to the Mid-Suburban League girls volleyball championships — two new schools to be exact.

Buffalo Grove and Forest View will collide on center stage tonight at 8:00 in the Bison gymnasium for the Mid-Suburban title, and both schools are making their first appearance in the deciding confrontation.

Hersey toppled Prospect for the 1975 championship, and Prospect had ruled Wheeling in 1974.

The Mid-Suburban League battle tonight sets up an interesting rematch. Buffalo Grove dumped Forest View in the season opener, winning two straight games 21-19, 20-18.

BUFFALO GROVE and Arlington both finished with 4-1 marks in the North but the Bison handled Arlington last week, 20-16, 20-13.

Forest View compiled a 6-0 South mark, one step ahead of Rolling Meadows, and in a crucial match with Schaumburg to end the dual meet season, the Falcons ruled 6-20, 20-7, 20-15.

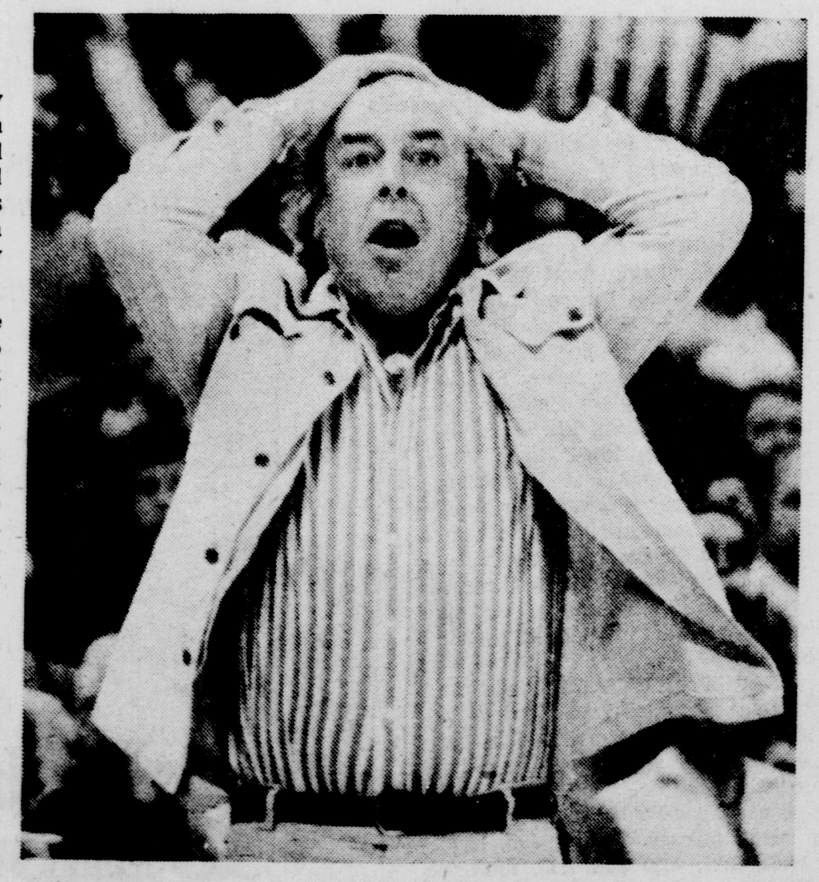

Prior to the championship tonight at Buffalo Grove, Arlington and Rolling Meadows will meet in the consolation game at 6:30.

Hersey took the 1975 title with a surprising 20-16, 20-11 victory over Prospect. Forest View claimed the preliminary last season with a 13-20, 20-13, 20-18 win over Wheeling.

Although the league season ends tonight, the girls will pick up in mid-January in the district competition leading to the state.

Notre Dame hands Indiana third loss

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Center Toby Knight camt off the bench to score a career high 23 points and grab 12 rebounds and lead fourth-ranked Notre Dame to a 78-65 victory over Indiana Tuesday night.

It was Notre Dame's sixth consecutive win and only the fourth time in the last 30 years they have won their first six games. Indiana, the defending national champions, fell to 1-3.

Notre Dame converted numerous Indiana turnovers in the first 10 minutes of the game to jump out to a 21-10 lead. Indiana then came back behind the shooting of all-American center Kent Benson and freshman swingman Mike Woodson to close it to a 35-33 Notre Dame lead at the half. The Hoosiers committed 22 of their 30 turnovers in the first half.

After an exchange of baskets in the first five minutes of the second half, Notre Dame took a 10-point lead at the 12:18 mark when Knight executed a crowd-arousing slam dunk. Notre Dame's largest lead was 60-47 with 8:18 left in the game when Dave Batton, who had 18 points, scored on a layup.

Also scoring in double figures for Notre Dame were Don Williams with 15 points and Bruce Flowers with 10. Standout guard Ray Martin was hurt with eight minutes left and was taken to the hospital for examination of an injured ankle.

Benson led Indiana with 18 points, Woodson had 16 and Wayne Radford 10.

Finley vs. Kuhn delayed one day

Trial of Charles O. Finley's $3.5 million damage suit against Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has been delayed for one day by agreement of the rival attorneys and will begin Thursday in the court of U.S. District Judge Frank McGarr in Chicago.

McGarr dismissed three of the seven counts in Finley's suit, those alleging anti-trust violations, in September, and there will be testimony from "10 to 12" witnesses probably starting on Thursday.

It was understood that Finley's attorney, Neil Papiano of Los Angeles, would seek only monetary damages in the suit. The suit originally asked for an injunction to prohibit Kuhn from voiding the sale of three players, Joe Rudi, Rollie Fingers, and Vida Blue, by Finley's Oakland A's.

The suit stems from Kuhn's decision banning Finley's sale of outfielder Joe Rudi and pitcher Rollie Fingers to the Boston Red Sox for $2 million and pitcher Vida Blue to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million.

Michigan, Marquette 1-2 by UPI

NEW YORK — Michigan and Marquette remained 1-2 in the latest college basketball ratings of the United Press International Board of Coaches, but unbeaten Notre Dame, 11th a week ago, surged to fourth in the wake of its second major upset this season.

The Fighting Irish, who beat highly-rated Maryland at College Park in the opening week of the season, proved their might once again by shocking UCLA 66-63 at Pauley Pavilion Saturday night to run their record to 5-0.

Kentucky was third in the latest ratings, followed by San Francisco, North Carolina, Alabama, Arizona, Cincinnati and UCLA.

Giants reward McVay with top job

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. — The New York Giants rewarded interim coach John McVay for his performance over the final seven weeks of the season with a two-year contract Tuesday.

McVay, the most successful coach in the short history of the World Football League, was elevated from the Giant staff Oct. 25 to replace head coach Bill Arnsparger, who was fired after the Giants lost their first seven games.

Under McVay, the Giants finished out 3-4 with victories over Washington, Detroit and Seattle.

"This is certainly the biggest thing that's ever happened to me," said the 45-year-old McVay. "If you're one of the 28 coaches in the NFL, that's the epitome of your profession."

Bowl spots for Payton, Chambers

NEW YORK — Running back Walter Payton and defensive tackle Wally Chambers were the only two Chicago Bears selected Tuesday to represent the National Football Conference in the 1977 Pro Bowl, Jan. 17.

The Dallas Cowboys, with eight players selected, headed the 24-player squad. Central Division champion Minnesota was next with seven players selected, while Los Angeles had six and Washington three. Vikings' running back Chuck Foreman was the only unanimous pick on the NFC squad.

Maravich hits 51, Jazz triumph in Baylor debut

From Herald Wire Services

Pete Maravich scored 20 of a career-high 51 points in the third quarter Tuesday night to give the New Orleans Jazz a 120-117 win over the Kansas City Kings in their first game for new head coach Elgin Baylor.

Maravich, the NBA's leading scorer, played all but 35 seconds of the game and broke his previous personal record of 50 points set when he played with the Atlanta Hawks.

The New Orleans win came before 6,129 fans, the smallest crowd in the Louisiana Superdome this year. And it came just hours after the Jazz fired head coach Butch van Breda Kolff.

NEW ORLEANS, 15-12, broke a two-game losing streak in the debut for Baylor. The former Los Angeles Lakers star retired from basketball three seasons ago as the third all-time leading scorer and served as van Breda Kolff's assistant since 1974.

Maravich had 21 of his points in the first half, but new Orleans led by only one point. Kansas City stayed one point behind through most of the third quarter when Maravich scored 18 straight points. Gail Goodrich added 16 points for New Orleans while Richard Washington and Scott Wedman had 19 for the Kings, who fell to 12-15.

ELSEWHERE around the NBA, Four-year veteran Ernie DiGregorio enjoyed his best night as a pro, 36 points, and the Buffalo Braves ended a four-game losing streak with 108-99 victory over the Phoenix Suns.

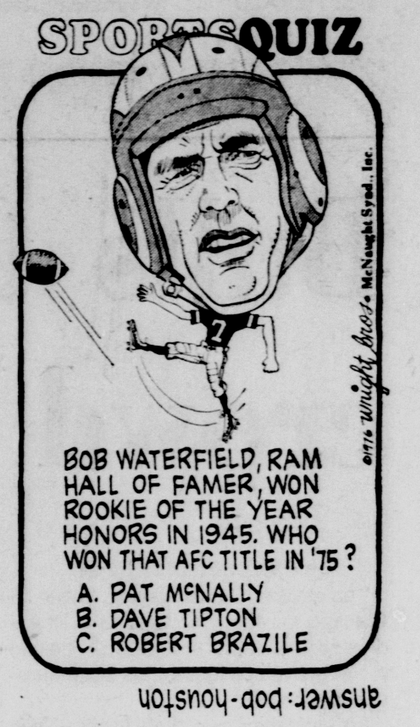

The former Providence star, who received a standing ovation with 10 seconds left in the game, tallied 14 points in the third quarter and 10 in the final period including a 20-footer with 40-seconds remaining to give the Braves a 104-99 advantage and their 11th win against 16 loses this season.

Atlanta guard Ken Charles stole an inbounds pass and shot an off-balance, 22-foot shot at the buzzer to cap a frantic rally that gave the Hawks a 106-104 victory over Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES held a 104-97 lead on a Lucius Allen jumpshot with 90 seconds left to play. The Hawks started their comeback by hitting three free throws. With 39 seconds, Lou Hudson tipped in a rebound to make 104-102.

Billy Paultz and Larry Kenon scored 28 points apiece and San Antonio drubbed the crippled New York Knicks 111-98.

Paultz hit a 15-foot baseline jumper 3:12 after the opening whistle and the Spurs never were in jeopardy after that. San Antonio led 32-21 at the end of the first period and the Knicks never got closer than 10 points the rest of the game.

Charging Rangers, Flyers settle for NHL stalemates

From Herald Wire Services

Rookie sensation Don Murdoch and veteran Phil Esposito each scored twice Tuesday night to help the surging New York Rangers overcome a two-goal deficit and achieve a 4-4 tie with the New York Islanders.

The Rangers were trailing 4-2 when Murdoch scored on a 40-foot slapshot with only one second remaining in the second period and Esposito achieved the tie after taking a perfect setup from Ken Hodge at 6:24 of the final period.

Clark Gillies scored two goals for the Islanders, who registered three goals in the second period on only six shots. Gillies' second goal came while his team had a two-man advantage at 8:06 of the second period.

IN OTHER NHL games, Tim Young's two goals in the last two minutes of play gave the Minnesota North Stars a 3-3 tie against the Philadelphia Flyers.

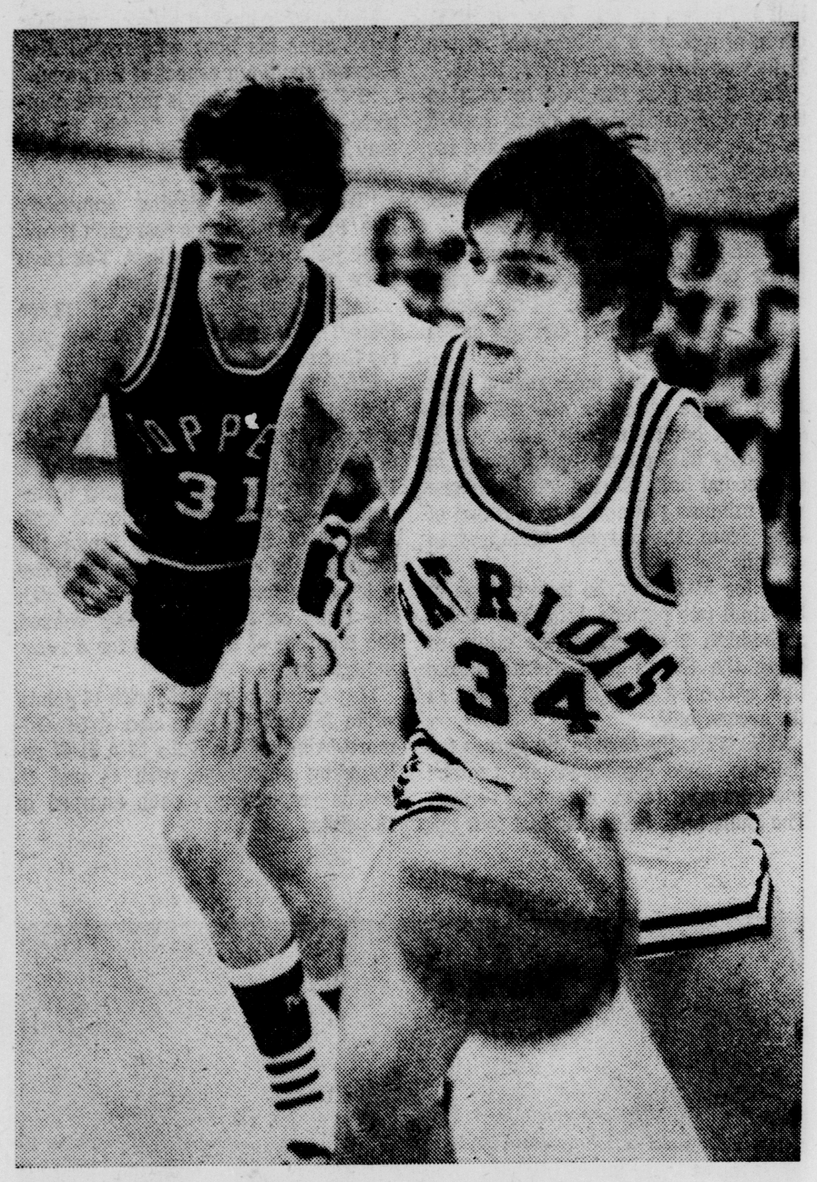

Young scored the tying goal with only 19 seconds to play. It was the first time in the history of the franchise that the North Stars pulled their goalie and scored to tie the game.

The Flyers are now unbeaten in 12 straight games.

Tommy Williams scored his 19th and 20th goals of the year to lead the Los Angeles Kings to a 4-2 victory over the Washington Capitals.

WILLIAMS, WHO totaled 19 goals in 70 games for Los Angeles last year matched that total in the Kings' 32nd game of the season at 2:46 of the first period to put Los Angeles ahead 1-0. Washington's Rick Bragnalo responded with a score to tie the game but the Kings' Marcel Dionne snapped the deadlock with a late first period goal.

After a scoreless second period, L.A. jumped ahead 3-1 on Whitey Widing's second goal of the year. The Caps rallied with Hartland Monahan's power play tally at 14:59 to cut the lead 3-2 but Williams' put the Kings safely out of danger on a 10-foot wrist shot three minutes later.

LOOKING DOWNCOURT, Stevenson's Mark Blaha dribbles past John Olson of Mount Pulaski in game won by Mount Pulaski, 65-47. Blaha led the Patriots with 14 points, but the visiting Hilltoppers, defending Class A champs, got revenge for a loss to Stevenson last year.

Dodge boys seek checkered flag

by DON CHRISTENSEN

With just one week remaining in first-half competition, Mr. Norm's Grand Spaulding Dodge became the third team with a chance to overtake leading Formco Metal Products in Paddock Classic action at Sims Bowl in Des Plaines.

Grand Spaulding Dodge shot a consistent 973, 989 and 955, to win all three games and 19 points from Formco Metal Products. Rich Wagner paced Grand Spaulding with 628. Rich started with the night's best individual game of 241. Jerry Belluzzi helped out with a steady 608 while substitute Mike Cregan led Formco with 618.

Beverly Lanes edged Oost Produce, two out of three games, to regain the league lead by seven points. In the first game, Beverly squeaked past Oost by three pins 911 to 908, mostly on the strength of Ken Miller's 216. In the second game Oost ran away 956 to 863. John Kartheiser's 216 and Jack Oost's 206 showed the way.

IN THE THIRD GAME tables were reversed when Beverly got hot and won 1034 to 938. The big total in the last game also enabled Beverly to win the series point by six pins. Four of Beverly's men were over 200 in the final match with Ron Nelson's 226, the narrow leader. Shooting 600 on the pair were Beverly Lanes' Bob Glaser with 619 and Oost Produce's John Kartheiser with 609.

Weber's Bar-B-Que Kettles had trouble with Des Plaines Ace Hardware, losing 17 of 25 points. Ace Hardware triumphed the first game, 905 to 866. Then with John Surges and Joe Simonis getting doubles in the 10th frame and Tom Kouros finishing with four in a row, Weber's edged Ace 952 to 935. Ron Garr strung five in a row the last game, and Des Plaines Ace Hardware managed to hang on 960 to 931.

In the last match, Uncle Andy's Cow Palace, having bowled very well at Sims, beat Dick McFeely Pontiac three games and 19 of 25 points, despite Ray Baccus' league-leading series of 640. Mike Myslinski came through for Uncle Andy's with a 614.

ON THE CRUCIAL final night of the first half and position night at Buffalo Grove-Striker Lanes, the matchups are Beverly Lanes versus Formco Metal Products, Grand Spaulding Dodge versus Webers Kettles, Uncle Andy's Cow Palace versus Des Plaines Ace Hardward, and Oost Produce versus Dick McFeely Pontiac.

Cole swims to lead in state

Prospect High School's Tom Cole, who starred in the Knights' 80-80 tie with Arlington last Friday, turned in a state-leading :53.7 clocking in the 100 butterfly Tuesday evening.

Cole's effort came in Prospect's 114-50 victory over Maine West. In addition to being the fastest posted time in the state for the 100 butterfly, the mark also set a school and pool record.

Cole also worked on two winning relays Tuesday.

Tom Stahnke of Rolling Meadows had the previous state best of 54 seconds flat.

PASSING GEAR. Grand Spaulding Dodge has accelerated into contention in the Paddock Classic Traveling League and has an opportunity to win the first half title. Standing (from left) are Bud Ewert and Rich Wagner. Seated are Rey Ischer and Jerry Belluzzi. Missing is Jim Thompson.

Mason Shoes bowls 1,001 as women's race tightens

The plot in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League is beginning to thicken and if the pressure continues to mount, the happy ending for Petterson Safety Service may have to be altered.

The leaders, struggling of late, are now within striking range of Striking Lanes and Ten Pin Bowl — both of which are just one sweep away.

Although Petterson continues to show the way with 71 points, Striking Lanes has clawed to within five at 66 and Ten Pin looms as a threat with 64.

THE SITUATION was complicated at Brunswick Northwest Bowl when Striking trimmed Petterson, 5-2 while Ten Pin was blitzing Ziebart Rustproofing of Des Plaines, 7-0.

Lu Schoenberger carried the torch for Striking Lanes with a 205 opening game en route to a 578 series. Bette Brelle chipped in with 528 and Eunice Whitmore 517. Bobbie Kostelny countered with 563-219 for Petterson while teammate Winnie Lohse added 510.

Ten Pin's success story was authored by Joan Plywack's hefty 597-224 with Ethel Juenger (540-203) Betty Peterman (542) and Marge Lindenberg (518) other key contributers. Peggy Harris' 556-200-209 wasn't enough to salvage Ziebart.

But while the race for league supremacy was stealing the thunder, Mason Shoes was efficiently establishing a new single-game mark for the season with a prolific 1001 opening game.

THE ROBUST MARK was engraved by Irma Faust's whopping 234, Jackie Gard's 216 and Sandi Circullo's 215. Faust added a 211 in her middle effort for a resounding 630 series while Gard tipped the magic 600 mark with a 601. Cirullo fired 554 and Peggy Wales 533.

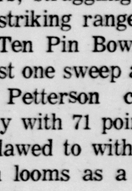

Victimized by the potent Mason offensive was L-Tran Engineering which bowed, 7-0, despite a 579-205-212 by Lorrie Nichols and a 504 by Vi Douglas.

Thunderbird Country Club culminated action with a 7-0 sweep of Tower Cleaners. The winners parlayed the balanced scoring of Dee Kachelmuss (538), Jean Ladd (533), Marge Carlson (530), Mary Yurs (516) and Joan Sobczak (514).

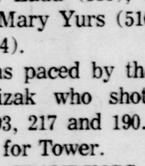

Tower was paced by the 600 series of Pam Lizak who shot consistent scores of 193, 217 and 190. Julie Friis added a 515 for Tower.

STANDINGS

Petterson Safety Service 71, Striking Lanes 66, Ten Pin Bowl 64, Ziebart of Des Plaines 56, L-Tran Engineering 55, Mason Shoes 44, Thunderbird Country Club 43, Tower Cleaners 21.

'Have bat, will travel' baseball

Jim Murray

On a day when not much else was happening in the free world, you will be cheered to know Bob Cluck found work. He was named minor league instructor by the Houston Astros.

The New York Yankees renewed their working agreement with West Haven. Spokane got its schedule approved. Baltimore signed an agreement for a year's supply of windbreakers. Connie Ryan was named third base coach of the Texas Rangers.

A crime wave of sorts was announced. Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced 3,054 bases were stolen in the major leagues last year. No figures were kept on the number of watches or wallets which met a similar fate.

YOU BETTER be sure you're sitting down before I tell you this, but Teddy Martinez was drafted by the Dodgers. The Milwaukee Brewers acquired a player whose name is either Rich Cerone, or Rich Cerona, depending on which paragraph of the news release you believe. No matter how you spell it, he hit .125 last year.

Roger Freed is going back up to the big leagues — again.

The winter baseball meetings were full of big stories like that. Would you believe that John Lowenstein is going to the Toronto Blue Jays? Would you believe the Toronto Blue Jays? For 100 silver dollars, can anyone tell me what the Seattle Mariners are? Hockey? Basketball? Vegetable? Mineral?

Can you get excited over the news that George Scott is going back to Boston. Did you even know he left?

BASEBALL HAS many pressing problems this Year of Our Lord 1976. For one thing, they've got one league with 14 teams and one with 12. They've got one league that plays 10-man baseball and another one that plays nine.

They've got a $180 million stadium in New Orleans which common decency demands be filled with a baseball team 81 games a year — except it has 11,000 seats you can't see home plate from. Watching a baseball game without seeing the batter is like watching an opera you can't hear.

But baseball's biggest problem is not where Teddy Martinez or George Scott strikes out next year, it's whether it owns its players in fee simple any more. The sport faces a game of musical chairs that boggles the mind.

No sooner will a player get four straight hits or retire the side in order for two consecutive innings than he will be playing out his option and sitting by the telephone waiting for a bidding war.

THE FOUNDING fathers never envisioned the "have bat, will travel," brand of baseball the majors are facing in their 77th year. The problem is, how're you going to keep 'em down on the farm after they've seen Jerry Kapstein? General Motors can't turn out a product if there's a mass exodus of key workers every October. So how can baseball?

The interim solution seems to be to sign athletes to multiyear contracts. Except, there's a judge somewhere who will junk that option in time. Hollywood used to try that with its infamous seven-year contracts with yearly options but they were tossed out in litigation years ago. If a contract is no better than the honor and good faith of the signer, baseball is in terrible shape.

Anarchy would seem to be a bigger problem than the designated-hitter rule. Does anybody seriously doubt a star player will begin screaming for his lawyer the first time he's benched for a pinch hitter — or his soup is cold on the team charter?

IT WOULD seem the great game has problems of a much higher order than who is going to coach third base for the Texas Rangers. It may be facing a crisis of fan loyalty more serious than that of the Black Sox scandal of 1919. Who can root for a pack of transients who have to take off their caps to see who they're playing for — here today, Yankees tomorrow? Who can empathize with a bunch of businessmen whose athletic credo has gone in one decade from "For God, country and for Yale" to "For stock options, deferred income, and 10 per cent of the gross?"

Inter-league play, and the infield fly rule were not the winter meetings' knottiest problems. It's inter-team jumping, gypsy outfielders who go through more franchises in a year than the Mississippi River, baseball Hessians for hire. Unless the grand old gamesters hammer out a reasonable substitute for the reserve caluse, injurious to no one, there'll be no more earth-shaking bulletins on the hiring of third base coaches, and Spokane won't have any schedule to be approved. The infield fly rule will be phased out like the four-wheeled surrey, and the dirty-faced little urchins sobbing, "Say it ain't so, Joe" will mean Rudi.

And, instead of a Lou Gehrig wiping his eyes as he says, "It was great to be a Yankee," we'll have a guy saying, "It was great to have been a, er, ah, Yankee, Oriole, Angel, Cub, Phillie and Blue Jay."

Forego repeats as Horse of the Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Martha Gerry's Forego, called "the greatest horse I have ever ridden" by jockey Bill Shoemaker, was named Horse of the Year Tuesday for the third straight year in the Eclipse Award poll.

The 6-year-old gelding won six of eight starts in 1976, despite conceding his handicap rivals tremendous weight advantages, to become the third-leading money-winner in thoroughbred racing history.

In winning $491,701 to boost his career earnings to $1,665,217, the son of Forli-Lady Golconda also captured the divisional award for male thoroughbreds, 4 years or older.

KENTUCKY DERBY and Belmont Stakes winner Bold Forbes was the 3-year-old Colt of the Year, while 2-year-old colt honors went to Mrs. Karen L. Taylor's Seattle Slew, who raced only three times but won brilliantly in each.

Nelson Bunker Hunt's 3-year-old Washington, D.C., International victor, Youth, was selected as the leading turf horse.

William Haggin Perry's Revidere was named queen of the 3-year-old fillies after eight victories in 10 starts, while Mrs. Marion Scott's Proud Delta captured the award for females older than three.

Nicholas F. Brady's Sensational was the champion 2-year-old filly and George Weasel's 4-year-old filly won the Sprinter of the Year title.

The steeplechase title went to Mrs. Ogden Phipps' Straight and True.

THE ECLIPSE Awards are based on balloting among the Thoroughbred Racing Assn., the Daily Racing Form and the National Turf Writers Assn.

Trained in 1976 by Frank Whiteley, Jr., who trained Ruffian, Forego's greatest triumph of the year was in the Marlboro Cup when the 17-hand gelding conceded 18 pounds to Honest Pleasure and came from way back to win bya head. Forego is expected to return to racing next year in an effort to surpass Kelso's record earnings of $1,977,896.

Tar/Taste Theory Exploded.

Taste-science breakthrough gives low tar MERIT the flavor of cigarettes having 60% more tar.

By locating certain flavor-rich ingredients in cigarette smoke, ingredients that deliver taste way out of proportion to tar, researchers at Philip Morris have disproven the theory that cigarette flavor depends on the amount of tar that goes with it.

They've discovered how to pack flavor—unprecedented flavor—into a cigarette that delivers one of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

The discovery is called 'Enriched Flavor.'™ It's extra flavor, natural flavor, and only MERIT has it.

Tests Verify Taste

In taste tests involving thousands of cigarette smokers like yourself, MERIT was reported to deliver as much—or more—taste than current low tar leaders.

What's really startling is that these brands have up to 60% more tar than MERIT.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough.

Now smoke the cigarette.

MERIT. Incredible smoking satisfaction at only 9 mg. tar.
